FOUR BOYS KILLED BY BLAST

EXPLOSION OF DRUM
PROVING MYSTERY;
FIFTH BOY INJURED

Ownership Of Steel Container Denied By
Rubber Firm

AKRON, O., April 30.—An investigation was under way here today to determine ownership and contents of a fifty-gallon steel drum, explosion of which caused the death of four Akron boys and the serious injury of another, Sunday.

The blast occurred behind the hose shed of a Goodyear Tire and Rubber company warehouse, according to police, who expressed belief that one of the boys struck a match on the drum and ignited escaping gas. The dead:

Charles Carter, 14;
Frederick Wodtly, 13;
Albert Carter, 10, brother of Charles;

Leman Carter, 5, brother of Charles and Albert.

Leslie Busk, 14, although severely burned, was expected to recover. First to reach the boys following the explosion, N. R. McCarter, Akron, attempted to extinguish the flames. Later he was joined by others, including Fred Wodtly, father of one of the victims. Wodtly ran to call an ambulance, unaware of his son's identity until his young daughter told him she thought Frederick was among the group. The boy, burned beyond recognition, then was identified by means of a mouth organ found in his pocket.

Goodyear officials claim "outsiders" left the drum near the shed.

NATIONAL PARENT-
TEACHER BODY MEETS

CLEVELAND, O., April 30.—The thirty-second annual convention of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers formally opened its six-day meeting here today with an address by Mrs. A. H. Reeve, Philadelphia, president of the organization.

Nearly two thousand men and women from every state in the nation, and several foreign countries, are here to attend the sessions, which it was said, will deal principally with education "Bringing Up the Child of 1928," and the discussion of problems surrounding childhood.

Mrs. Reeve's address will deal with the "Four Ages of Childhood." Following this, a conference of delegates will be held to organize schools of instruction to continue through the remainder of the convention.

The annual banquet will take place tonight at which John J. Tiers, United States Commissioner of Education is scheduled to speak.

Three Were Killed Instantly In Pure Oil Explosion

COLUMBUS, O., April 30.—Two Ohio men are among the five fatally injured at Muskegon Oklahoma late Saturday as the result of an explosion in an experimental still of the Pure Oil Company's plant, according to reports reaching here today.

The Ohio men reported dead are: Wells Hutchinson of Marietta, and Robert Tucker of Columbus.

Three men were killed instantly in the explosion, Pure Oil officials at Columbus were told, but details of the tragedy have not been learned.

Those killed outright are: J. W. Lyons, Jr., of Dillsboro, N. C.; George Eaton, still foreman, and Oscar Loving.

MUSKOGEE, Okla., April 30.—Five men are dead here today as a result of an explosion in a refinery still house Saturday night. All died in a hospital where they were taken when severely burned in extinguishing flames. Only slight damage was done in the refinery.

The dead are:

A. H. Hutchinson, Chicago, refinery still expert.

George Eaton, foreman, Muskogee.

R. T. Tucker, employe, Columbus, Ohio.

ONCE WELL KNOWN
PLAYER IS DEAD

COLUMBUS, O., April 30.—Funeral services for Samuel H. Pickens, 55, once well known as an actor in "Ten Nights in a Barroom," will be held here Wednesday afternoon, it was announced today.

Pickens died here yesterday in a hospital after four months' illness. He received well recognition when he played Joe Morgan in the barroom drama and was also formerly manager of Orlanthy Park here.

Besides a son and three brothers, all of Columbus, he is survived by a sister, Mrs. Margaret Hoffman, of Zanesville.

AIR CARNIVAL

SAN DIEGO, Cal., April 30.—The greatest number of airplanes ever in the air at one time in America will be seen here Aug. 16, according to plans made public today by the aviation committee of the Chamber of Commerce. More than 325 planes will take to the ether at that time, and it is hoped will be reviewed by Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, who has been invited here to dedicate Lindbergh Field.

SEEK FOUR BANDITS FOR GIRL'S MURDER

Sixteen-Year-Old Movie Usherette Killed In Cold Blood By Gunmen Who Get $1,500 From Chicago Theater

CHICAGO, April 30.—The greatest manhunt of recent years was in progress here today in search of four bandits who last night shot and killed a 16-year-old girl cashier during a motion picture theater holdup.

The girl was shot through the heart when she involuntarily screamed from fright at the bandits' appearance. A girl assistant fainted at her side. The bandits scooped up $1,500 in currency and fled.

The slain girl was Miss Pearl Eggerston. The scene of the robbery was the large new Ritz Theater in Berwyn, west side suburb. More than 2,000 patrons were thrown into a panic by the roar of guns.

Miss Eggerston, an usherette, had entered the ticket cage a few minutes before the robbery to assist Miss Gertrude Plante, the cashier, in a check of the day's receipts. It was just at the closing hour.

Miss Plante had gone to the manager's office and Miss Eggerston was sorting currency when three dapper youths, unnoticed by her, stepped up to the door of the cashier's cage. They wore masks and were armed.

"Hand over the money!" one of them commanded.

Taken completely by surprise, Miss Eggerston screamed. The bandit leader took deliberate aim and fired. Miss Plante returned in time to see her assistant fall. She fainted and fell at the door of the cage.

BRITISH ALARMED BY SITUATION IN EGYPT

Cabinet Meeting Called To Consider Alleged Crisis;
British Warships May Change "Counsels At Cairo"

LONDON, April 30.—A special meeting of the British cabinet was summoned late this afternoon by Premier Baldwin to consider the Egyptian crisis. The British battleships Valiant and Warspite, and the cruisers Ceres and Calypso have left for Egypt to meet any possible eventualities arising from the crisis, according to a Central News dispatch from Malta.

The Egyptian government has shown a strong determination to put the bill on the statute books despite British opposition. For this reason, it is felt here, the situation is fraught with menace.

Admiralty and foreign office officials refused to discuss the Egyptian situation pending the statement which Foreign Secretary Sir Austen Chamberlain promised to make in the house of commons.

Unofficially it declared that the presence of British warships off the Egyptian coast would have a salutary effect in "bringing about wiser counsels at Cairo."

The British ultimatum protesting against passage of the public assemblies bill by the Egyptian parliament will expire at 7 o'clock Wednesday evening. Failure to comply would probably result in the seizure of the Egyptian customs by the British. Customs are the chief source of the Cairo government's income.

The British government claims that the public assemblies bill would infringe Great Britain's rights in Egypt, notably the British right to protect foreign interests.

PROPOSE CONGRESS
ADJOURNMENT MAY
19 FOR CONVENTION

Believe Business Of Both Houses May Be Finished Soon

WASHINGTON, April 30.—Adjournment of congress on May 19 became a strong possibility today when Republican leaders of the house indicated that they could meet the demand of the senate for an early cessation of business to prepare for the national conventions.

Rep. John Q. Tilson of Connecticut, majority floor leader today declared for the first time that the house would be able to wind up its business within three or four weeks.

Although Senator Curtis (R) of Kansas, majority floor leader of the senate, has urged May 19 as adjournment date for some time, the pilots of the business in the house have heretofore predicted June 1 as adjournment date.

The death of Rep. Martin B. Madden, (R) of Illinois, chairman of the house appropriations committee, who had declared himself favorable to early adjournment, has delayed consideration of the McNary-Haugen farm bill in the house.

During the ensuing week, however, the house will dispose of the farm bill and the senate is expected to enact a tax reduction measure. Boulder Dam, merchant marine, flood control and emergency officers' retirement bills are among the major measures which are expected to receive attention in one or both houses.

CREW SAVED WHEN
SCHOONER SINKS

WOODS HOLE, Mass., April 30.—The five members of the crew of the two-masted schooner Bon Homme, of Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, today owe their lives to a boat of Boston and the crew had to put off in a small boat.

Less than an hour after the men had abandoned the craft, the Abascoona appeared, picked the men up, and wirelessly word of the accident and rescue. She was met off Nobska Point in Vineyard Sound, by coast guard patrol boat 235, where the rescued men were taken off and brought here.

PREMIER POINCARE
WINNER IN CHAMBER OF DEPUTIES VOTE

Policies Approved By Election; Socialists Are Losers

PARIS, April 30.—With Guadeloupe Constituency the only one out of 412 not counted, returns in the chamber of deputies election showed today a decisive victory for Premier Raymond Poincare and the policies of his national union government. While the general election took place on April 22, it was necessary to re-ballot in 612 districts yesterday owing to the fact that the original voting gave no candidates in those districts a definite majority.

The only member of the Poincare cabinet who failed of re-election was Minister of Labor Fallieres.

Premier Poincare's majority in the chamber will be approximately 100 seats.

The Right Republicans won 145 seats, this representing a gain of twenty-three seats. The Left Republicans lost twenty-five seats. They will have ninety-three seats in the new chamber. The radical Socialists elected 117 deputies, which is sixteen fewer seats than they had in the old chamber.

The heavy losses sustained by the Socialists and Communists was the feature of the election as a whole. Leonblum, most powerful of the Socialist leaders in Paris, was defeated by a Communist.

Chief Beltz and officer Molkettine answered what later proved to be a fake distress call at an isolated section of North Riverside. When they arrived on the scene, ten gangsters leaped from an automobile and opened fire on Beltz.

LOCUSTS INCREASE
CORINTH MISERY

ATHENS, April 30.—Famine conditions in the district of Corinth, which has suffered from an almost continuous series of earthquakes during the last two weeks, were further aggravated today by a plague of locusts.

Practically every structure in Corinth which had survived the many years of the earthquake was shaken down by a rather severe shock yesterday which was felt over a wide area.

As the entire population of the city had fled to the open fields, there were no casualties. The locust plague is proving a serious menace to the food supply.

Lindbergh climbed into the plane and with a farewell wave to the crowd, "gave 'er the

HUSBAND OBJECTS TO EATING IN KITCHEN; KILLS TWO AND SELF

LOS ANGELES, April 30.—Mrs. Nettie Sims, her former husband, Henry F. Schroeder, and their two grown daughters took dinner in the dining room of the Sims home last evening.

Meanwhile Mrs. Sims' present husband, Harvey Sims, a policeman, ate in the kitchen.

Sims didn't like the arrangement. He entered the dining room with a revolver in his hand.

He fatally shot Schroeder, seriously wounded Mrs. Sims, and then took his own life.

POLICE SEEK GUNMEN WHO SLEW

Gangsters Opposed To "Reform" Ticket Blamed For Killing; Chief Of Police Escapes Plot Of Gangsters.

CHICAGO, April 30.—Special police squads, bristling with arms, patrolled the little suburb of North Riverside today as a result of gangland's challenge to establish authority.

Gangsters, said to be dissatisfied over the "reform" ticket victory in the recent primary election, claimed a general reign of terror Saturday night by shooting and seriously wounding Police Officer Fred L. Molkettine.

The shooting of Molkettine was a miscarriage of a carefully laid plot to assassinate Chief of Police Arthur Belz, according to the authorities.

Chief Beltz and officer Molkettine answered what later proved to be a fake distress call at an isolated section of North Riverside. When they arrived on the scene, ten gangsters leaped from an automobile and opened fire on Beltz.

The chief saved himself by falling flat on his stomach. Molkettine went down with a bullet in his head.

RADIOS PICTURES

BOSTON, April 30.—"The voice of the minuteman," Station WLEX at Lexington, the first station in the world to use picture transmission in conjunction with its regular program, announced today that television on a definite broadcast schedule would begin in two weeks. Station WGY at Schenectady has done experimental work in this line.

Under the Jones-Reid bill the government would have to buy the land or flowage rights. The president would turn the water in when ever a flood came and pay people for the damage. He is said to believe that this would be far more economical and would result in no danger to life.

With the conference committees in temporary adjournment because of the death of Rep. Madden (R) of Illinois, new sessions were planned on Wednesday.

More Than 2,500,000 Help Pay Honor To Ocean Flyers

NEW YORK, April 30.—

"Welcome Bremen flyers!"

With this paean of praise on their lips, thousands upon thousands of people massed themselves upon the sidewalks of New York today, eager to unloose a vociferous tribute to two daring Germans and a fearless Irishman—Baron Gunther Von Huenefeld, Captain Hermann Koehl and Major James C. Fitzmaurice, the trio who made the first westerly flight across the Atlantic.

Nearly a million people had turned out by nine o'clock this morning and police estimated that within an hour or two 2,500,000 persons would be in the streets, atop skyscrapers, in the windows of big buildings, aboard boats in the harbor and in other vantage places witnessing the pageant which the city is tendering in honor of the flyers.

Not since the spectacular welcome to Lindbergh, Chamberlain, Byrd and other trail blazers of the sky had New York City given way to such unrestrained enthusiasm.

The city was ablaze with color. From buildings all along the line of march the flags of three nations fluttered in the warm sunshine. There were the red, white and blue of Old Glory, the red, black and gold of the German Reichsflag and the green, white and orange of the Irish Free State.

The flyers breakfasted late in their suite at the Ritz. Baron Von Huenefeld's first request of the day was for a barber. One was sent to the suite and the baron was shaved and trimmed. So was Koehl. Fitzmaurice, however, shaved himself.

Meantime the first consignment of the big order for new clothes for the flyers arrived. It consisted of two business suits for each of the flyers, twelve pairs of shoes, a half a dozen hats, the same number of shirts and all the accessories. When the flyers hopped off from Ireland they brought only their flying togs.

The entrance and lobbies of the Ritz were guarded by seventy-five traffic policemen.

C. A. ("Duke") Schiller, who flew to Greenly Island with the first relief plane, joined the flyers in their suite after breakfast.

Major Fitzmaurice's garb for the day was the uniform of the flying corps of the Irish Free State. Col. Walter A. Delamater of the Seventy-First Regiment, New York National Guard, sent him a Sam Brown belt and another soldier furnished him a pair of boots. Fitzmaurice was suffering from a severe headache, the result of the strain he has been under. He fought it with aspirin.

At 10:45 the flyers escorted by Grover Whalen and the mayor's reception committee, left their suite on the ninth floor of the hotel. They were taken downstairs, through crowds in the lobby, and out to their automobile.

Then the procession started, amid wild cheering from the vast throng that had congregated in the vicinity.

SINCLAIR LEWIS TO
WED AMERICAN GIRL

LONDON, April 30.—Sinclair Lewis, famous American novelist, who was recently divorced by his wife at Reno, Nev., will be married to Dorothy Thompson, American newspaper writer on May 14, probably in the Henrietta St. registry office, according to arrangements made today. It is planned to have a benedictory service at the Savoy Chapel.

In filing formal declaration of their intention to marry Miss Thompson gave her age as 33 and said she was the daughter of an American clergyman, the Rev. Peter Thompson. Lewis gave his age as 43.

Miss Thompson is divorced from her first husband. In her papers filed today she gave her name as Dorothy Thompson Bard, Bard being the name of her former husband.

PRISONER SHOT IN JAIL BREAK LIVES

COLUMBUS, O., April 30.—Bryan Keenan, 27, Cleveland gangster and convicted murderer in the Ohio State Penitentiary here, who was thought to be fatally wounded in an unsuccessful attempt to escape, was still alive in the prison hospital here today.

Doctors said he would not live over forty-eight hours after he was shot by a guard at the institution when he tried to effect his escape by driving a large truck through the iron-barred gates of the institution March 27.

Now physicians report that the man has a chance to get well, though they say, he will never fully recover as a portion of his liver was shot away by the gunshot that felled him.

POLICE SEEK GUNMEN WHO SLEW OFFICER IN CHICAGO SUBURB

Gangsters Opposed To "Reform" Ticket Blamed For Killing; Chief Of Police Escapes Plot Of Gangsters.

CHICAGO, April 30.—Special police squads, bristling with arms, patrolled the little suburb of North Riverside today as a result of gangland's challenge to establish authority.

Gangsters, said to be dissatisfied over the "reform" ticket victory in the recent primary election, climaxed a general reign of terror Saturday night by shooting and seriously wounding Police Officer Fred L. Molkete.

The shooting of Molkete was a miscarriage of a carefully laid plot to assassinate Chief of Police Arthur Belz, according to the authorities.

Chief Belz and officer Molkete answered what later proved to be a fake distress call at an isolated section of North Riverside. When they arrived on the scene, ten gangsters leaped from an automobile and opened fire on Belz.

The chief saved himself by falling flat on his stomach. Molkete went down with a bullet in his head.

Belz opened fire from the ground.

All of the village officials, including the newly elected "reform" president, Robert Noha, and his board of trustees, have received anonymous death threats.

SIDEWALKS MASSED BY EXCITED HUMANS TO GREET AVIATORS

More Than 2,500,000 Help Pay Honor To Ocean Flyers

NEW YORK, April 30.—"Welcome Bremen flyers!"

With this paean of praise on their lips, thousands upon thousands of people massed themselves upon the sidewalks of New York today, eager to unloose a vociferous tribute to two daring Germans — Baron Gunther Von Huenefeld, Captain Hermann Koehl and Major James C. Fitzmaurice, the trio who made the first westerly flight across the Atlantic.

Nearly a million people had turned out by nine o'clock this morning and police estimated that within an hour or two 2,500,000 persons would be in the streets, atop skyscrapers, in the windows of buildings, aboard boats in the harbor and in other vantage places witnessing the pageant which the city is tendering in honor of the flyers.

Not since the spectacular welcome to Lindbergh, Chamberlin, Byrd and other trail blazers of the sky had New York City given way to such unrestrained enthusiasm.

The city was ablaze with color. From buildings all along the line of march the flags of three nations fluttered in the warm sunshine. There were the red, white and blue of Old Glory, the red, black and gold of the German Republic and the green, white and orange of the Irish Free State.

The flyers breakfasted late in their suite at the Ritz. Baron Von Huenefeld's first request of the day was for a barber. One was sent to the suite and the baron was shaved and trimmed. So was Koehl. Fitzmaurice, however, shaved himself.

Meantime the first shaving of the big order for new clothes for the flyers arrived. It consisted of two business suits for each of the flyers, twelve pairs of shoes, a half a dozen hats, the same number of shirts and all the accessories. When the flyers hopped off from Ireland they brought only their flying tops.

The entrance and lobbies of the Ritz were guarded by seventy-five traffic policemen.

C. A. ("Duke") Schiller, who flew to Greenly Island with the first relief plane, joined the flyers in their suite after breakfast.

Major Fitzmaurice's garb for the day was the uniform of the flying corps of the Irish Free State. Col. Walter A. Delamater of the Seventy-First Regiment, New York National Guard, sent him a Sam Brown belt and another soldier furnished him a pair of boots. Fitzmaurice was suffering from a severe headache, the result of the strain he has been under. He fought it with aspirin.

At 10:45 the flyers escorted by Grover Whalen and the mayor's reception committee, left their suite on the ninth floor of the hotel. They were taken down stairs, through crowds in the lobby, and out to their automobile.

Then the procession started, amid wild cheering from the vast throng that had congregated in the vicinity.

SINCLAIR LEWIS TO WED AMERICAN GIRL

LONDON, April 30.—Sinclair Lewis, famous American novelist, who was recently divorced by his wife at Reno, Nev., will be married to Dorothy Thompson, American newspaper writer on May 14, probably in the Henrietta St. registry office, according to arrangements made today. It is planned to have a benedictory service at the Savoy Chapel.

In filling formal declaration of their intention to marry Miss Thompson gave her age as 33 and said she was the daughter of an American clergyman, the Rev. Peter Thompson. Lewis gave his age as 43.

Miss Thompson is divorced from her first husband. In her papers filed today she gave her name as Dorothy Thompson Bard. Bard being the name of her former husband.

PRISONER SHOT IN JAIL BREAK LIVES

COLUMBUS, O., April 30.—Bryan Keenan, 27, Cleveland gangster and convicted murderer in the Ohio State Penitentiary here, who was thought to be fatally wounded in an unsuccessful attempt to escape, was still alive in the prison hospital here today.

Doctors said he would not live over forty-eight hours after he was shot by a guard at the institution when he tried to effect his escape by driving a large truck through the iron-barred gates of the institution March 27.

Now physicians report that the man has a chance to get well, though they say, he will never fully recover as a portion of his liver was shot away by the gunshot that killed him.

XENIA D. A. R.'S

ADDRESS CEDARCLIFF.
Cedarcliff Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, was graciously received by Mrs. H. C. Aultman and Mrs. William Houtson at the home of the former, Saturday afternoon.

Bowls of roses and other flowers gave a hint of spring to the meeting.

The program was particularly enjoyable, including talks by Mrs. A. C. Messenger who told of her work as state chairman of international relations and national defense; Miss Sarah B. Williams, who gave her impressions of the State D. A. R. Conference; and Mrs. William Magee Wilson, who described sessions of the Continental Congress. A social time followed the talks and delicious refreshments were served.

SPRING ATMOSPHERE

TO SURROUND BREAKFAST.
Patrons of the Central High School breakfast at Central High School Tuesday will be served by dainty young women, senior girls, dressed in the pastel shades of the spring time.

The cafeteria will be decked with the colors of spring and May baskets will play a prominent part in the decorative note.

The guests may be served either waffles, honey and sausage or bacon and eggs, besides strawberries and coffee. The cafeteria will open at 6:30 and remain open for serving until 8:30.

The public is cordially invited to patronize the breakfast, arranged by the senior girls. The event is expected to be a delightful innovation at the school.

JOINT BIRTHDAYS

CELEBRATED AT PARTY.
Mr. Harry Faulkner and son, Arthur, were honored with a surprise party on their joint birthday, Wednesday. A number of relatives and friends called in the evening, with well-filled baskets.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Henson Talbott and family, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Sessler, Mr. John Robinson and daughter, Hazel; Mr. and Mrs. Norman Leach and family, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Carter, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Faulkner and family, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bone and family, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Faulkner and family, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond St. John and family.

RELATIVES ARRANGE

BIRTHDAY SURPRISE
Relatives of Mr. Corwin Ary arranged a surprise at his home near Xenia, Sunday, the occasion being in celebration of his birthday.

Twenty-five guests spent the day together and enjoyed a family dinner. Guests from a distance included Mr. Homer Ary and son, Kenneth; Mr. and Mrs. Glen Ary, all of Union City, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. Guy Ary, Itasca, O.; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Ary, Greenville, O.; and Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Murphy, Dayton.

PYTHIAN SISTERS

TO CELEBRATE DATE
Triumph Temple, Pythian Sisters will celebrate the tenth "birthday" of the order, Tuesday evening, at the Knights of Pythias Hall.

A banquet will be served at 6:30 to which members and their families are cordially invited. A social period will follow.

Mrs. George C. Stokes, executive secretary, Social Service League, is searching for a high chair, needed by a widow with a large family.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Garwood, this city, were among the guests entertained by Mrs. Blanche Smith and Mrs. A. E. Igon, Springfield, Saturday evening at the home of Mrs. Igon. Early in the evening, the guests enjoyed dancing in the Arcade Hotel ballroom.

Miss Irene Brown has taken a position in The Commercial and Savings Bank.

Representatives of all patriotic organizations are urged to attend a meeting in the C. A. R. Hall, basement of the Court House, Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock to make arrangements for Memorial Day.

In connection with the national observance of Music Week, May 6-13, a delightful program is being planned by the First Reformed Church, this city, for Sunday evening, May 13, at 7:30 o'clock. A cordial invitation is extended to the public. The program will be announced later.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. McWethy, and son, Donald, Cincinnati, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Burch Smith, N. Detroit St.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hilderbrand and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Lamoney, Dayton, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hoagland and two daughters, New Osborn, were Sunday guests of Mrs. Alice Bagford, Spring Valley.

Miss Mina St. John has resigned her position as buyer for the ready-to-wear department of the Hutchinson and Gibney Store, effective last Saturday.

Mrs. R. J. Kelly and Mrs. Mary M. Meredith left last Saturday for Cleveland to attend the grand opera season. They will visit with Mr. W. G. Dice at Toledo before returning home. They made the trip by motor.

The Byron Ladies Aid Society will meet at Mrs. Howard Miller's Thursday afternoon, instead of at Mrs. Harry Trolinger's.

All members of the third degree staff of Xenia Lodge, No. 52, I. O. O. F., are requested to be present Tuesday, May 1, for rehearsal. Refreshments will be served following the rehearsal.

John, small son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bales, W. Third St., has been severely ill two weeks, suffering from infection in his neck.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Baxter and Mrs. A. A. Saunders were called to Venetia, O., by the death of Mr. Joseph Dyke, Mrs. Saunders' brother-in-law. Funeral services will be held Tuesday.

Wilson "Dad" Shelley Is On Pennsy Honor Roll

Climaxing practically forty-four years of continuous service, Wilson Shelley, 67, 686 S. Detroit St., switch tender at the local yards of the Cincinnati Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad, has been transferred from active duty to the company's honor roll, effective Tuesday, May 1.

Shelley, affectionately known as "Dad" among fellow workers, is retiring voluntarily under a disability clause in the company's regulations which permits employees to become eligible for pension at the age of 65. All railroad men are automatically retired on pension at 70.

As an example of the high regard in which he is held by friends and associates in the service, Mr. Shelley was the recipient of a gift of a big Cowlair chair from A. J. Matott, assistant trainmaster for the Cincinnati Division of the road, and other employees of the local yards on the eve of his retirement Monday.

With the possible exception of one man, Mr. Shelley is perhaps the oldest employee at the Xenia station in point of service. He would have completed exactly

Radio Revue BY C. KAY

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to Gazette

NEW YORK, April 30.—Youthful experiments in radio for the fun of it have contributed some valuable knowledge to the science of short wave transmission, now one of the most important commercial factors in radio. Remarkable and sometimes freakish communications between amateurs in distant lands have been more than made up for by the news of the day.

The amateurs came out of the international radiotelegraph convention, held in Washington last summer, with their heads on the other side of the globe. They were considerably at the insistence of foreign nations. As a result of the conference the bands available for amateurs were materially reduced at the beginning of next year. As a partial compensation for that, the commission is allocating the 10-wave band. Other bands left open to amateurs are 4.69 to 5.35 meters, 8.45 to 8.57 meters and 150 to 175 meters.

A great deal of experimental activity in this band is naturally to be expected. Normal methods of operating do not seem to apply in waves so short. New and novel means, possibly involving unanticipated antennae and reflectors, may have to be devised. But with 18,000 amateurs tackling the problem, interesting results are expected by engineers, who are frankly glad that the youngsters, so to speak, are tackling the problem of ultra-short waves which others, presumably better versed in radio science, haven't solved.

Discovery of a method for utilizing the short band before the end of the year is absolutely necessary to prevent amateur radio chaos after January 1, in the opinion of K. B. Warner, secretary of the American Amateur Radio Relay League.

"Our bands will be so congested at that time that we simply must be able to make use of the ten-meter waves to carry a share of the amateur activity. Yet new methods must be devised before this is possible."

"We know how to get good results on all the bands down to twenty meters, but it has been very much of a problem to make five meters perform usefully. Although we have reason to believe that all waves below about thirteen meters are difficult to handle usefully, the chances of success we think are much greater at ten meters than at five."

Canada has already authorized amateurs to work in this band without interference from commercial or government stations.

Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Earnes and Mrs. Emma Michener, this city and Mrs. and Mrs. Harvey Barnes, Dayton, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Millard Garmon, near Hillsboro.

Mrs. Mary C. Brown, W. Market St., was taken suddenly ill Saturday, and was improved after the serious attack, Monday.

Mrs. Mary Miller, who has been an invalid at the O. E. Bales home, W. Third St., some time, is seriously ill, following a recent attack. She was slightly improved Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Short, Dayton Pike, are the parents of a daughter, born Saturday. The child has been named Harriet Louise.

A daughter was born to Mrs. William McCormick at the Espee Hospital, Sunday morning. Mrs. McCormick makes her home with Dr. and Mrs. A. C. McCormick, N. Detroit St.

Mrs. Carrie Best, who accompanied her son, Dr. Marshall Best on a ten days' motor trip to Baltimore, Md., and other points in the east, returned home Saturday evening. Dr. Best left his mother at Columbus to go to Cincinnati to attend a medical meeting. He will return here Wednesday night.

Mrs. Jacob Miller, W. Second St., remains severely ill at her home.

Mrs. C. K. Ellis, Bowersville, is ill with pneumonia.

Miss Besse Kennedy has resigned her position in the city offices to take a position at the Aldine Publishing Co., as bookkeeper. Miss Olivia Cost has resigned at the Aldine Co. Miss Kennedy's position at City Hall has been taken by Miss Adeline Malone, who has been employed in Dayton.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gales, E. Third St., were in attendance at the Odd Fellows society Sunday afternoon at Xenia Springs.

Mr. and Mrs. William Bryant in company with Mrs. Pearl Henderson and Mrs. Belle Tibbs, motored to Yellow Springs Sunday and were guests of friends. They also attended the Odd Fellows services.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Harris, E. Market St., were visitors Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Ollie Michael, Dayton, O.

Miss Margaret Harris, E. Market St., one of the contestants for the title "Miss East High School," who has been ill for the past week with grip is back in school.

COLLEGE MEN WILL ATTEND TRAINING CAMPS THIS SUMMER

COLUMBUS, O., April 28.—Several Army Reserve Training Camps in the Fifth Corps Area will be crowded with college men from Ohio, Indiana, West Va., and Kentucky this summer who will see active service to supplement the drill and theoretical training they have received at college, according to plans under way here.

Camps that will receive the university recruits are Camp Knox, Ky., Carlisle Barracks, Pa., Fort Sheridan, Ill., Camp Custer, Mich., Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., Edgewood Arsenal, Md., and Fort Humphreys, Va.

Some 815 men are to be sent to these camps, 363 from Ohio, 328 from Indiana, seventy from Kentucky and fifty-four from West Virginia. These men are the students who are taking advanced R. O. T. C. courses at their respective schools. Upon completion of their work at the schools and the summer camp period they will receive commissions in the organized reserve of the United States Army.

The following colleges are expected to be represented: Ohio State University, University of Cincinnati, Denison, Akron, Dayton and Western Reserve colleges in Ohio; Indiana University, Culver, DePauw, Purdue and Rose Polytechnic institutes in Indiana; the University of Kentucky and the University of Tennessee in Kentucky; Col. G. L. Townsend, Infantry, U. S. A., professor of military science and tactics at the Ohio State University will be in charge at Camp Knox. The period at the Kentucky camp will last from June 16 to July 27.

OPEN HOME-COMING HEADQUARTERS HERE IN GREEN ST. ROOM

Plans for the 1935 Greene County Home-Coming began to assume definite form Monday morning when headquarters for the executive committee were opened up at 33 Green St. in a room offered free of charge for this purpose by Mrs. W. J. Cherry, Federal Pike, owner of the building in which the room is located.

Complete office equipment and a telephone have been installed. The telephone number is 729 and the public is invited to call up for any information desired regarding the event planned for the latter part of August.

EDITOR-DEMOCRAT WILL BE KEYNOTER

WASHINGTON, April 30.—Claude G. Bowers, New York editorial writer today was selected as the keynote speaker of the Democratic national convention in Houston in June.

His election by the arrangements committee meeting here, was unanimous. Selection of Bowers as temporary chairman and keynoter had been generally agreed upon by party leaders. He was placed in nomination by Mrs. Leroy Springs of South Carolina.

Bowers is the author of "Party Battles of the Jackson Period," and "Hamilton and Jefferson," and has been a prominent speaker at party gatherings. After his speech at the Jackson Day dinner here in January, his selection as convention keynoter was generally conceded.

GUARD OFFICER IS ACCIDENT VICTIM

WENATCHEE, Wash., April 30.—Victim of an accidental bomb explosion, the body of Major John Fancher, commander of the 41st division air unit of the Washington National Guard and World War ace, rested in the coroner's office here today, awaiting burial plans.

Major Fancher's body was terribly mangled when a bomb in his hand exploded. His injuries proved fatal a few hours later. The bomb was one of a number used for exhibition purposes during the annual Wenatchee Apple Blossom festival.

SCHOOL BUILDING SAVES HOTEL BILL FOR TRAVELERS HERE

Three men ranging in age from 20 to 25, who were detained at Police Headquarters over Sunday on suspicion after it developed they had slept in McKinley grade school building Saturday night, have been released by police.

The three gave their names as Stanley Gabeath, 23, Harold McMullen, 24, and Floyd Miller, 20, all of St. Marys, O.

Discovery and confiscation of a Ford coupe, which had been parked all night in the rear of the school building, led to arrest of the trio. Patrolman George Robinson brought the car to Police Headquarters.

McMullen appeared later to claim the machine. Under questioning, he admitted that he and two companions had spent the night at the school. The other two were found at a restaurant.

They told police they were hunting work and in an effort to economize had sought shelter in the school building overnight. Each had about $25 in his pockets.

The trio had found a fire escape door open and entering, walked in to the classroom of Miss Edna Bloom, principal of the school. There they improvised beds on a lounge and on the floor, using blankets from their auto.

Don't Make a Toy Out of Baby - Babies Have Nerves

By RUTH BRITAIN

Much of the nervousness in older children can be traced to the overstimulation during infancy, caused by regarding baby as a sort of animated toy for the amusement of parents, relatives and friends. Baby may be played with, but not for more than a quarter of an hour to an hour daily. Beyond that, being handled, tickled, caused to laugh or even scream, will sometimes result in vomiting, and invariably causes irritability, crying or sleeplessness.

Fretfulness, crying and sleeplessness from this cause can easily be avoided by treating baby with more consideration, but when you just can't see what is making baby restless or upset, better give him a few drops of pure, harmless Castoria. It's amazing to see how quickly it calms baby's nerves and soothes him to sleep; yet it contains no drugs or opiates. It is purely vegetable and the recipe is on the wrapper. Leading physicians prescribe it for colic, cholera, diarrhea, constipation, gas on stomach and bowels, feverishness, loss of sleep and all other "upsets" of babyhood. Over 25 million bottles used a year shows its overwhelming popularity.

With each bottle of Castoria, you get a book of Motherhood, worth its weight in gold. Look for Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the package so you'll get genuine Castoria. There are many imitations. —Adv.

WAYS TO SAVE

That difference in rental and other overhead expenses results in a difference in price in merchandise in Xenia and Dayton is proven by a story told by a Xenia clothing merchant Monday.

The Xenia merchant handles clothing made by the same firm as that sold by a prominent Dayton clothing store. It happens that the Dayton store purchased suits in styles and patterns for spring similar to many stocked by the Xenia merchant.

The only difference in the merchandise was in the price, the Xenia store advertising and selling these suits, in the same trade-marked name, pattern and style for $40 while the Dayton merchant exhibited these suits in his display window at $50 each.

The Dayton merchant, of course, is not trying to rob his customers. He is merely the victim of an extremely high overhead, a large part of which is the rental cost in one of the most advantageous locations in Dayton. A Xenia shoe merchant pointed out a similar situation recently. Both Xenias agreed that buyers attracted by handbills circulated in Xenia might easily be deceived into paying more money for their merchandise, and going to more trouble and expense to get this merchandise, than if they had remained in Xenia and patronized home town merchants.

NEW ENROLLED AS HOOVER SUPPORTER

INDIANAPOLIS, April 30.—Postmaster General Harry S. New today formally enrolled himself as a supporter of Herbert Hoover, who is battling with New's fellow Hoosier, United States Senator James E. Watson for Indiana's thirty-three votes for president.

The endorsement of the secretary of commerce, was made public by Booth Tarkington, Indiana novelist, who revealed a letter from New praising Hoover.

CALIFORNIA WILL SELECT DELEGATES

SAN FRANCISCO, April 30.—California democracy will go to the polls tomorrow and decide which of three contesting delegations shall carry the California donkey banner into the Houston convention.

Wilson "Dad" Shelley Is On Pennsy Honor Roll

Climaxing practically forty-four years of continuous service, Wilson Shelley, 67, 686 S. Detroit St., switch at the local yards of the Cincinnati Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad, has been transferred from active duty to the company's honor roll, effective Tuesday, May 1.

Shelley, affectionately known as "Dad" among fellow workers, is retiring voluntarily under a disability clause in the company's regulations which permits employees to become eligible for pension at the age of 65. All railroad men are automatically retired on pension at 70.

As an example of the high regard in which he is held by friends and associates in the service, Mr. Shelley was the recipient of a gift of a big Cresswell chair from A. J. Matott, assistant trainmaster for the Cincinnati Division of the road, and other employees of the local yards on the eve of his retirement Monday.

With the possible exception of one man, Mr. Shelley is perhaps the oldest employee at the Xenia station in point of service. He would have completed exactly

Radio Revue BY C. KAY

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to Gazette

NEW YORK, April 30.—Youthful experiments in radio for the fun of it have contributed some valuable knowledge to the science of short wave transmission, now one of the most important commercial factors in radio. Remarkable and sometimes freakish communications between amateurs in distant lands have been more than made oddities to scientists. Amateurs' pickups of explorers' messages and relays to newspapers, and their emergency work during catastrophes are well known. It was an amateur that caught for the waiting world the first news of the landing of the German-Italian transatlantic fliers on Greenland Island.

All of this makes important the news that the federal radio commission has opened a contest to award prizes to amateur radio operators who will work for ten months, between 30,000 and 28,000 kilocycles, of 9.99 and 10.71 meters. But the opening of the ten-meter band will have little or no effect on other short-wave services unless past experiences are repeated and the amateurs lose the band as soon as they prove its efficacy for reliable communication.

The amateurs came out of the international radiotelegraph convention, held in Washington last summer, with their lease on the ether channels circumscribed considerably. As a result of the conference the bands available for amateurs became reduced to a small fraction of the beginning of next year. As a partial compensation for that, the commission is allocating the 10-wave band. Other bands left open to amateurs are 4.69 to 5.35 meters, 8.45 to 8.5.7 meters and 159 to 175 meters.

A great deal of experimental activity in this band is naturally to be expected. Normal methods of operating do not seem to apply in waves so short. New and novel means, possibly involving unanticipated antennae and reflectors, may have to be devised. But with 18,000 amateurs tackling the problem, interesting results are expected. The engineers, who are frankly glad that the youngsters, so to speak, are tackling the problem of ultra-short waves which others, presumably better versed in radio science, haven't solved.

Discovery of a method for utilizing the short band before the end of the year is absolutely necessary to prevent amateur radio chaos after January 1, in the opinion of K. B. Warner, secretary of the American Amateur Radio Relay League.

"Our bands will be so congested at that time that we simply must be able to make use of the ten-meter waves to carry a share of the amateur activity. Yet new methods must be devised before this is possible."

"We know how to get good results on all the bands down to twenty meters, but it has been very much of a problem to make five meters perform usefully. Although we have reason to believe that all waves below about thirteen meters are difficult to handle usefully, the chances of success we think are much greater at ten meters than at five."

Canada has already authorized amateurs to work in this band without interference from commercial or government stations.

THREE KILLED WHEN AIRPLANE CRASHES

EUREKA, Cal., April 30.—An official inquiry opened here today into the cause of the air tragedy which claimed the lives of three men, William Spalletta, veteran pilot, Billy Wenzel and Larry Beatty, musicians.

The three men were burned to death when the plane in which they were soaring over the local airport suddenly ripped apart in midair, burst into flames and zigzagged to the ground.

Wenzel, police learned, hired the aviator to take him aloft in the plane in an effort to cure a cold. He had reason to believe that his friend, accompanied him as a pleasure rider.

COLLEGE MEN WILL ATTEND TRAINING CAMPS THIS SUMMER

COLUMBUS, O., April 28.—Several Army Reserve Training Camps in the Fifth Corps Area will be crowded with college men from Ohio, Indiana, West Va., and Kentucky this summer who will see active service to supplement the drill and theoretical training they have received at college, according to plans under way here.

Camps that will receive the university recruits are Camp Knox, Ky., Carlisle Barracks, Pa., Fort Sheridan, Ill., Camp Custer, Mich., Fort Leonard Wood, Md., Edgewood Arsenal, Md., and Fort Humphreys, Va.

Some 815 men are to be sent to these camps, 363 from Ohio, 328 from Indiana, seventy from West Virginia and fifty-four from Kentucky. These men are the students who are taking advanced R. O. T. C. courses at their respective schools. Upon completion of their work at the schools and the summer camp period they will receive commissions in the organized reserve of the United States Army.

The following colleges are expected to be represented: Ohio State University, University of Cincinnati, Denison, Akron, Dayton and Western Reserve colleges in Ohio; Indiana University, Culver, DePauw, Purdue and Rose Polytechnic institutes in Indiana; the University of Kentucky and the University of West Virginia.

Col. G. L. Townsend, Infantry, U. S. A., professor of military science and tactics at the Ohio State University will be in charge at Camp Knox. The period at the Kentucky camp will last from June 16 to July 27.

The service record established by you is exceptional and indelibly marked. It is well in keeping with the annals of our company and we appreciate beyond all question such service from our employees has made our railroad what it is.

"We will miss you at your old location Mr. Shelley but every one of us wish you joy and health and comfort and many years of happiness upon the Honor Roll."

Another letter received from Mr. Matott, advising him that his transfer from active duty to the Honor Roll, becomes effective May 1, declared that "your company and the Cincinnati Division is proud of the record of your loyal and efficient service."

Mr. Shelley also took the opportunity to express his gratitude for the many kindnesses shown him by Mr. Matott as well as R. C. Barnard, superintendent of the division, and F. L. Davis, former assistant trainmaster.

Complete office equipment and a telephone have been installed. The telephone number is 729 and the public is invited to call up for any information desired regarding the event planned for the latter part of August.

Miss Josephine Wolf is in charge of the headquarters. The committee is still seeking to obtain names and addresses of former residents of the county and all communications should be addressed to headquarters.

ROYALTY ATTENDS WEDDING OF PEERS

TURIN, ITALY, April 30.—In the presence of a distinguished array of royalty and nobility, the Duke of Pistoia was married in the Turin royal palace today to the Princess Lyda Arenberg.

There were two ceremonies, the first civil and the second religious. Among the guests were King Victor Emmanuel, Queen Elena, Crown Prince Humbert, twelve Italian royal princes and princesses and a host of foreign nobility.

The Duke of Pistoia is a colonel in the Italian cavalry. He is thirty-three years old and the second son of the Duke of Genoa, uncle of the king. The bride is the daughter of the ninth Duke of Arenberg and the Princess of Ligne. She is twenty-three years old.

EAGLES' CARNIVAL DRAWS LARGE CROWD

Attendance at the opening of the annual carnival and indoor festival sponsored by Xenia Aerle, No. 1659, Fraternal Order of Eagles, Saturday night, exceeded expectations. Aerle officials announce.

Free dancing was enjoyed by the large crowd during the evening. Music for the dancers was supplied by Clarence Jeffries and his orchestra. A Xenia band that has acquired popularity, not only in Xenia but in surrounding cities.

The entertainment will continue each evening this week, winding up Saturday night.

SET NEW RECORD

NEW YORK, April 30.—A new record for flights between Washington, D. C., and New York is believed to have been made by Capt. Arthur Warren and Lieut. Paul D. Myers of the 27th Division Air Service, stationed at Miller Field, S. I. They flew a new Curtiss Falcon army biplane to Miller Field from Bolling Field, Washington, in an hour and twenty minutes.

GRASS BURNS

A grass fire on property owned by Mrs. Ida Streit at 164 Hill St., provided firemen with their sixtieth alarm of the year at 1:03 p. m. Monday. A bonfire had been built and left unattended. No damage resulted.

Don't Make a Toy Out of Baby - Babies Have Nerves

By RUTH BRITTAIN

Much of the nervousness in older children can be traced to the overstimulation during infancy, caused by playing with a sort of animated toy for the amusement of parents, relatives and friends. Baby may be played with, but not for more than a quarter of an hour to an hour daily. Beyond that, being handled, tickled, caused to giggle, or even screaming, will sometimes result in vomiting, and invariably causes irritability, crying or sleeplessness.

Restlessness, crying and sleeplessness from this cause can easily be avoided by treating baby with more consideration, but when you just can't see what is making baby restless or upset, better give him a few drops of pure, harmless Castoria. It's amazing to see how quickly it calms baby's nerves and soothes him to sleep; yet it contains no drugs or opiates. It is purely vegetable—the recipe is on the wrapper. Leading physicians prescribe it for colic, cholera, diarrhea, constipation, gas on stomach and bowels, feverishness, loss of sleep and all other "upsets" of babyhood. Over 25 million bottles used a year shows its overwhelming popularity.

With each bottle of Castoria, you get a book on Motherhood, worth its weight in gold. Look for Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the package so you'll get genuine Castoria. There are many imitations. —Adv.

WAYS TO SAVE

That difference in rental and other overhead expenses results in a difference in price in merchandise in Xenia and Dayton is proven by a story told by a Xenia clothing merchant Monday.

The Xenia merchant handles clothing made by the same firm as that sold by a prominent Dayton clothing store. It happens that the Dayton store purchased suits in styles and patterns for spring similar to many stocked by the Xenia merchant.

The only difference in the merchandise was in the price, the Xenia store advertising and selling these suits, in the same trade-marked name, pattern and style for $40 while the Dayton merchant exhibited these suits in his display window at $50 each.

The Dayton merchant, of course, is not trying to rob his customers. He is merely the victim of an extremely high overhead, a large part of which is the rental cost in one of the most advantageous locations in Dayton. A Xenia shoe merchant pointed out a similar situation recently. Both Xenians agreed that buyers attracted by handbills circulated in Xenia might easily be deceived into paying more money for their merchandise, and going to more trouble and expense to get this merchandise, than if they had remained in Xenia and patronized home town merchants.

NEW ENROLLED AS HOOVER SUPPORTER

INDIANAPOLIS, April 30.—Postmaster General Harry S. New today formally enrolled himself as a supporter of Herbert Hoover, who is battling with New's fellow Hoosier, United States Senator James E. Watson for Indiana's thirty-three votes for president.

The endorsement of the secretary of commerce was made public by Booth Tarkington, Indiana novelist, who revealed a letter from New praising Hoover.

CALIFORNIA WILL SELECT DELEGATES

SAN FRANCISCO, April 30.—California democracy will go to the polls tomorrow and decide which of three contesting delegations shall carry the California donkey banner into the Houston convention.

Official wisecracks over the country reason that the verdict of California's Democrats may have an important bearing upon final results at the Houston pow-wow.

The state organization, for the greater part, has taken up the candidacy of Governor Al Smith of New York. Strong independent groups are supporting Senator James A. Reed and Senator Thomas J. Walsh.

The William Gibbs McAdoo wing of the Democratic party has backed Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana. The ticket is led by McAdoo and composed of men and women that followed him in the Democratic factional fight of 1922.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

A DILIGENT TEACHER—Go to the ant, thou sluggard; consider her ways and be wise: Which having no guide, overseer, or ruler, provideth her meat in the summer, and gathereth her food in the harvest.—Prov. 6:6, 7.

SEARCH FOR KNOWLEDGE

The extent to which the American people are studying the world's wisdom is suggested by the enrollment at some of the bigger colleges. Columbia university, for instance, has an enrollment for the year of 36,639 persons, including under graduates, professional school students, summer schools and university extension courses.

The total number of students of all kinds above high school grade in this country is enormous.

Young people feel poorly equipped for life, if they do not know more than their parents did. Every young person of ambition ought to be looking out for his future needs, and most of them should be studying to fit themselves for the place they hope to hold in the world.

INVENTIONS AID EMPLOYMENT

Increased use of power and greater mechanization of industry has not contributed to unemployment, National Industrial Conference Board surveys show.

While productive output per wage earner increased 40 per cent from 1914 to 1925, total manufacturing production increased over 65 per cent during same period. Thus not only were the 29 per cent of workers who were released by increased individual output absorbed in this greater total production, but number of needed workers increased by about 1,500,000.

HANDSHAKES AND SHAKEUPS

Mussolini says hand-shaking is undesirable. When Mussolini says anything is undesirable that particular thing ceases to exist in Italy. He said the Mafia was undesirable. Look what happened to it. He said an opposition party was undesirable. There is no opposition party. He declared parliament to be needless and undesirable. You may now search in vain for an Italian parliament. He proclaimed that disputes between labor and capital were altogether undesirable. And there are no more disputes. Can anyone doubt that the handshake is doomed? Nay, if Benito were to express disapproval of using sugar in coffee the use of sugar would instantly cease. Were he to declare in favor of knee pants for men all the breeches of Italy would be abbreviated overnight.

For greeting hereafter Italians must use the Fascist salute. This is supposed to be the straight-arm swing, easy in the open, but perhaps somewhat difficult in a crowd. The handshake is a relic of pre-Fascist days and pre-Fascist ways. It is not distinctive Italian. And besides someone has told Benito that it is unsanitary.

The calisthenics incidental to the Fascist salute are undoubtedly beneficial. But think of the agony of the president of the United States giving the Fascist salute to each individual in a line of New Year's callers. Of course he would have to salute them in mass, and let it go at that, just as Benito does.

Benito is sometimes right, often wrong, and on the whole we think he may be right this time.

It is feared a good deal of mud will be thrown in the coming campaign, but those that sling it usually get more on their own clothes than anywhere else.

In order to please the farmers, the politicians have to do something besides shake the plumtree.

The Way of the World

By GROVE PATTERSON

VITAMINS

Much talk these days about vitamins, the name given to essential food elements for the human being. Vitamins or no vitamins, a perfectly unscientific view of the situation leads on to believe that bad cooking has a lot to do with domestic upsets and good cooking has a profound influence on human happiness.

WONDERING WHY

A university man, graduate of a well-known school, was recently employed to teach social science in an important high school. Before he could begin, the police had landed him for theft. Twenty watches and other articles of value were found in his room. His excuse was that he was "broke" and needed money to support his family.

It would be interesting to know how much heredity and how much environment is in this young man's case. Could we find the real CAUSE for this sort of behavior we should take a tremendous step in human progress. Somewhere in that brain there is an empty spot—or something which doesn't belong there.

CAUSES

It is hopeful and interesting to note the work constantly going on to find out the causes of things. Nothing happens by chance. There are no accidents in the world. Every action has a direct and logical cause. It is an ordered universe. The causes are the things we really want to know about.

What do you know about the causes of earthquakes?
"A downward movement of an inch of mercury in the thermometer," says Major Bowie, of the coast survey, "means an additional atmospheric pressure that is equal to a foot of water on the earth's surface. On an area 20 by 100 miles that would be a weight of a billion and a half tons. This pressure, or the relieving of pressure as a barometer rises, may be the 'trigger finger' that sets off the earthquake, though, of course, there are many other factors connected with the phenomenon."

The Diary of a New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD

NEW YORK, April 30.—Broadway is the show street, also the show-off street. The only night clubs which are profitable are those run for the benefit of persons who like flattery and are willing to pay for it. These folks find balm for the ego in being addressed correctly by a head waiter, given a "ringside" table, being referred to by name by a big-mouthed, vulgar "master of ceremonies," and paid attention by the usually nude girl "entertainers." They don't mind paying exorbitantly for their fun, such as it is.

Most of the big spenders are men or women who have ways of getting money without earning it. Broadway doesn't care where your money comes from as long as you spend it.

Until recently, the boys who did the most bankroll rolling in the gay places were two brothers who operated a seemingly prosperous brokerage house. They gave parties for crowds of girls. One actress they gave two automobiles, one costing $15,000 and another $18,000. To another actress they presented a grand piano. On one of the girls they had a handful of jeweled pieces among a crowd of girls who happened to be their companions for the evening.

Broadway saw their four limousines (why so many, no one knows), their sumptuous apartments, and supposed they were millionaires. But didn't care whether they were or not.

But now Broadway knows where they got the money. Their brokerage house is bankrupt, and they owe more than $1,500,000. Several hundred persons, many of them widows and persons of small means, are ruined financially. The boys, instead of investing money deposited with them, spent it on Broadway, showing off.

One of the strangest organizations in the world is the aviators' society, called "Quiet Birdmen." That isn't the real name, none but members know the correct meaning of the initials QB upon the tiny pins that initiates wear inconspicuously. Only members may attend meetings. Names of officers are never made public, and the organization does not permit publication of lists of its membership. Behind the clubhouse doors the QB's are able to talk frankly, without fear of question, about the aerial feats that bring wide world attention.

What wouldn't newspapers give to know what Lindbergh told the QB's? He belongs.

TRICKS OF PLEASING GUESTS

When a certain large hotel was opened in New York a few years ago, the manager appreciated that merely to provide excellent service would not be sufficient inducement to attract the guest in the habit of going to some other hotel which also offered excellent service. All other things being equal, a man would rather go to the hotel where habit has made him feel most at home—where everything is familiar. The only trouble with perfect service is that it attracts no attention. When a man is satisfied with a thing, he gives little thought to it one way or the other—just as a man never appreciates what a good little thing it is when it is working perfectly. He appreciates it only when it goes wrong. The manager of the hotel in question decided that the only way to impress on a guest that he is being well looked after is to give him super-service: a way to stir a man's imagination.

For example, a guest at this particular hotel orders food brought to his room. The waiter comes, it probably has not only the food but the resubud in a little vase. No matter whether he cares for flowers or not, the guest recognizes that it was thoughtful and clever of the manager to send him the nice little resubud. He thinks that is good service. Then, it suddenly flashes upon him: "Why, the service here is all good—remarkably good!" He remembers little items of high-grade service which he had previously accepted as mere routine. You see, his imagination has been awakened.

AND SCIENCE REIGNED

It was a protest meeting of Irish sympathizers. The president called the meeting to order, and after an eloquent harangue in which most of the important issues were skillfully avoided, he asked if there were any questions. A large, beefy individual with a forbidding scowl, whom each shall designate here as Mr. Murphy, arose to his feet and thundered out:

"What we'd like to know, Mr. President is what you did with the money we gave you last year?"

At that moment a chair fell from the balcony above the speaker, and Mr. Murphy, and considerably reduced his interest in the proceedings. His unconscious form was grasped capably and carried from the hall. Amid an eloquent silence the president asked quietly:

"Are there any more questions?"

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

MAKEUP—APPLICATION AND SELECTION

The artist who thinks in terms of complete effects has an unerring instinct for the selection and blending of color. His inspired brush paints color and youth into the eyes and the lips of his model. And if she, too, had cultivated the same genius for selection, the beauty that he gives her would be part of her actual existence.

Do you select a box of powder as passively as you buy a bag of sugar, thinking that all powder is good—even as all sugar ought to be? I shall not even attempt to question the quality of the powder that throng the market—but do buy only the products of well established reputation. Don't buy too light a powder. Don't forget your neck—under the chin and behind the ears in your powdering. It is really quite distressing to find a contrast in color—all on the one face! Along about this time of the year you begin to think of tan and freckles. If you tan you are about to receive welcome news, for there are now sun-tan powders. Sun-tan really is the best description of the color; they exactly blend with the shade of your skin after a good healthy tan. A foundation cream may be had to match the powder, and there you have the last word in sophistication. No matter what the reason or what the condition, your skin can still be perfectly groomed.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS M. D.

Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet For Children"

Answers to Correspondents

"Dear Dr. Lulu: I lost 56 pounds in seven months, and thanks to your wonderful teachings I am now a perfect 36. I did not eat quite so much as you advised, so I lost five pounds a week for quite a while. But what I would like to know is, after losing so much will I gain again? I start eating the things I want? I never touched potatoes or the more starchy foods, and am afraid to try because I wouldn't be fat again for anything."

—MRS. E.

Your average loss for the seven months was about eight pounds a month. That is not too rapid, it is not unusual to lose more than that. It isn't all fat, but a lot of excess water your tissues have been holding. After the first weeks, it is not advisable to lose more than two pounds unless you are being supervised by a physician, for a loss of more than this may mean that you are on a diet which is deficient in the foods you need. You must always remember that the only foods which you can cut down on are the energy foods, and the only reason you can do this is for your own fat will supply the deficit.

There is no reason why you shouldn't have potatoes and the foods you like for a treat occasionally, or even a small amount of them every day. But watch the little scales, for the same errors in diet that brought on your overweight in the first place, will bring it on again. You will find that you don't care quite so much for these foods as you used to. That is one of the advantages of being on a reducing diet long enough to get to normal weight. You re-educate your tastes. That's a very important point. Your tastes certainly must be re-educated.

When you are normal weight your food needs are apparently increased and you can eat more than you can while you were overweight.

Our reducing and gaining instructions are contained in a booklet on the subject which can be obtained by enclosing ten cents in coin to cover expenses of printing and handling, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Living and Loving

PROPER PRIDE

I don't believe in being proud to the extent of spoiling a perfectly good friendship, when it is just as much my place to make advances as the other person's. On the other hand, I don't see any use in going out of my way to be snubbed. There is such a thing as proper pride. To illustrate my point I will print a letter from a correspondent.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: Six years ago I started to go with a boy. We went together for three years. Then he was called away, and when he left he asked me not to forget him. I went with no one for several months, but not long after that he wrote and told me he had decided I was not the girl for him. Of course I felt badly about it, but made up my mind to try and forget and make something of myself. I went with other boys, but never seemed to find anyone like my old friend."

"Three years have passed, and he is now back in my town. I have seen him several times, but did not speak. The other day he spoke to me, and one night when my sister and her chum were on their way home he joined them. His invited him in. At first he said, 'he guessed he better not.' She invited him again and he came in. I was at home with mother and dad."

"He has seen me since, but has never made a date or even asked to call. Really, Mrs. Lee, I love him and would like to get back with him. Would it be correct to write and invite him to call? Or how can I arrange to let him know I want him."

"Rose Marie."

Well, considering he told you plainly that he thought you were not the girl for him, and has made no effort to call on you since he has been back, I think you would simply be inviting another snub to let him think you are anxious to have him come back. It is absolutely his place to ask you—and humbly at that—if he may come to see you, and if he does not care enough or has not enough spirit to do that, I think I would let him go, dear, even if it is hard.

DISCOURAGED FOLKS

"I am so discouraged I don't care what happens." This is what I overheard a woman say to a companion as I passed them on the street. How many people are lonely, tired and discouraged? I did you ever notice how everyone brightens up when a person with a smiling face comes along? No matter how down you may be feeling, when you encounter that face with a merry twinkle in the eye, you feel your mood brighten. It would be a good thing if we could all cultivate the merry things of life so that we may look cheerful and help others, would it not?

"Dear Mrs. Lee: About six months ago I met a boy and went with him about two months. We wrote to each other all the time. The last letter he wrote was just like before, but he never wrote again. What do you think was his reason for not writing any more?"

"Blue Eyes."

I can't imagine, Blue Eyes, unless he met a girl he liked better, which is not pleasant to consider, is it? Possibly something that he couldn't help prevented his writing as usual and he has written and explained before this.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, April 30.—The unvarnished fact is: As political result-getters, the "oil cases" have turned out practically a total flop.

They hardly figured in the last national campaign. There are no signs that they'll figure much in this year's.

They've had the good newspaper "play" in the press agent's language, but the public hasn't warmed up to them.

Before the senate investigating committee, they've drawn no crowds recently. In court, they've dragged. On election day, the voters appear never to have heard of them.

No popular "appeal"—seemingly.

My own theory is that it's been a long time since any but the merest handful of people have had any real idea what the "oil cases" are about.

Consequently nearly everybody's lost track of them. When Harry Sinclair actually is in the act of being acquitted of something there's a momentary interest, but it's scarcely associated in folks' minds with the original "oil cases."

And I don't wonder at this decline in interest.

To all intents and purposes, the oil inquiry has been exclusively Senator Tom Walsh's for the last five or six years. He's known more about it than anybody else, and he hasn't liked it when anybody else tried to dip into it—fell out with Senator Nye, for instance, when he did.

Walsh is a wonderful lawyer, but a pretty poorly publicity man. What he did to the oil investigation was to involve it in such a technical tangle—a such a mixup of jurisprudence, finance, government, geology, ethics and naval strategy—all of which played their part in the Teapot Dome and Elk Hills leases—that only a super-expert can make heads or tails of it.

It would be nice if political orators, in the next few months, could tell the voters what the "oil cases" really do mean, but it can't be done.

Not many political orators understand the meaning very well themselves. The ones who do know can't make it clear to the "man in the street." It's too complicated. It would be like trying to explain an intricate problem in the highest mathematics to a beginner in long division.

Harsh names can be called, of course—and will be—but both sides can do that—indeed, have begun it already.

To believe that the very jurists which have tried the Elk Hills and Teapot Dome cases have had anything but the haziest comprehension of the issues they were asked to decide, is a tremendous strain on the imagination.

They didn't look as if they did, and several of the jurors have since admitted that they didn't.

If not, it is likely that the average individual can't.

And the jurists, it's to be remembered, only had the simplest part of the puzzle to wrestle with—the basic Fall-Doherty-Sinclair dickers. All the Continental Trading company and campaign fund contribution details come later, plus an infinity of additional complications.

The plot's too devious to be followed except by a master mind like Tom Walsh's, and the bulk of it's bound to be wasted, in consequence.

Household Hints

By MRS. MARY MORTON

MENU HINT

For one's health whole wheat should be included at least once in every day's menu. For breakfast either whole wheat toast or whole wheat muffins should be served occasionally, especially where there are children. Better still, whole wheat toast should be the rule, with an occasional helping of white bread toast for a change.

Fresh Fruit, Prepared Cereal, Brown Bread Toast or Pecan Whole Wheat Muffins, Boiled Eggs, Coffee or Cocoa

TODAY'S RECIPES

Pecan Whole Wheat Muffins—One cup whole wheat flour, three-fourths cup white flour, four teaspoons baking powder, one egg, one-fourth cup brown sugar, half teaspoon salt, one cup milk, one-fourth cup shortening, half cup chopped pecans. Mix dry ingredients. Beat the egg, add milk and melted shortening. Add to dry ingredients, and lastly add chopped nuts. Bake for 25 minutes in a moderate oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit).

Graham Bread Toast—Graham bread may be used with excellent results in any of the toast recipes. Its distinctive flavor brings added zest to the dish. Graham bread with cream or pimento cheese, with jams, jellies or preserves, forms a particularly beautiful and nourishing combination, and is especially recommended for children.

Peter's Adventure

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

THE WINGED JEWEL

Just as quietly as he could, so that he should not disturb his old friends and frighten them into flying away before he had a chance to talk to them should any of his old friends be honey-buzzing among the blossoms, Peter stole over to the honey-suckle clump.

"Zzzzzz!" Still the buzzing sound continued, but not a bee was in sight.

"Why, where, what?" stammered the boy, looking about in astonishment. Then Peter jumped back a step, startled to find himself gazing straight into somebody's bright eyes. A bright jewel with wings was on a level with Peter's head. The bright jewel had a voice as well as eyes and wings.

"Why, where, what?" it mocked the boy. "What business is it of yours? I am minding my own affairs. What are you poking your nose into mine for?"

"I'm not!" Peter was indignant. "I don't know who you are, but you are disagreeable. If you are beautiful, I didn't come over here to see you. I didn't know you were here. I am looking for my friends, the bees. I heard them buzzing."

"You heard nothing of the sort," twittered the fellow, rudely. "You heard me. I should like to see any bee that could beat me at that game. Buzzing is one of my specialties. And I can gather as much sweet wine in a minute as a bee can in half a day."

"True enough, I don't make the sweet wine into honey and store it away to eat in the winter. I think that is about as stupid a thing as it is possible to do. I drink what I gather or take it home to the babies and all. When Jack Frost arrives I am far away where the skies are blue and the air is warm. I keep right on slipping nectar in the gardens of the Southland, and that, with an occasional spider or a fly or two once in a while, make me the most beautiful bird in all the world. You said yourself that I was beautiful, now didn't you?"

"I certainly did, and you are

But beauty doesn't count for much if you are hateful!" Peter was still cross. The flier knew how ungracious he had been and was sorry. He stopped his fluttering, alighted on a honeysuckle blossom, and stood perfectly still. And the boy caught his breath.

The sun shone upon the flier's coat of green and gold and made the ruby red feathers upon his throat gleam like living fire. With the rise and fall of his breath the tints of his throat changed from ruby red to deepest blue and back again to ruby red. Like a wonderful gem, part emerald, part ruby, the little bird sparkled and glittered in the sunlight.

"Beautiful!" exclaimed Peter. "I should say so! You are the most gorgeous bird I have ever seen! And now that you have stopped fluttering your wings can you guess who I am?"

"Who am I, Two-Legs?" asked the fellow. "If you guess right I will stay and talk to you. If you don't—Wrrr! Off I shall go—like that. Come now, quickly. What's my name?"

"Humming-Bird!" answered Peter, bravely.

"Peter, really?"

Nay, if Benito were to express disapproval of using sugar in coffee the use of sugar would instantly cease. Were he to declare in favor of knee pants for men all the breeches of Italy would be abbreviated overnight.

For greeting hereafter Italians must use the Fascist salute. This is supposed to be the straight-arm swing, easy in the open, but perhaps somewhat difficult in a crowd. The handshake is a relic of pre-Fascist days and pre-Fascist ways. It is not distinctive Italian. And besides someone has told Benito that it is unsanitary.

The calisthenics incidental to the Fascist salute are undoubtedly beneficial. But think of the agony of the president of the United States giving the Fascist salute to each individual in a line of New Year's callers. Of course he would have to salute them in mass, and let it go at that, just as Benito does.

Benito is sometimes right, often wrong, and on the whole we think he may be right this time.

It is feared a good deal of mud will be thrown in the coming campaign, but those that sling it usually get more on their own clothes than anywhere else.

In order to please the farmers, the politicians have to do something besides shake the plumtree.

The Way of the World

VITAMINS

Much talk these days about vitamins, the name given to essential food elements for the human being. Vitamins or no vitamins, a perfectly unscientific view of the situation leads on to believe that bad cooking has a lot to do with domestic upsets and good cooking has a profound influence on human happiness.

WONDERING WHY

A university man, graduate of a well-known school, was recently employed to teach social science in an important high school. Before he could begin, the police had landed him for theft. Twenty watches and other articles of value were found in his room. His excuse was that he was "broke" and needed money to support his family.

It would be interesting to know how much heredity and how much environment is in this young man's case. Could we find the real CAUSE for this sort of behavior we should take a tremendous step in human progress. Somewhere in that brain there is an empty spot—or something which doesn't belong there.

CAUSES

It is hopeful and interesting to note the work constantly going on to find out the causes of things. Nothing happens by chance. There are no accidents in the world. Every action has a direct and logical cause. It is an ordered universe. The causes are the things we really want to know about.

What do you know about the causes of earthquakes?

"A downward movement of an inch of mercury in the thermometer," says Major Bowie, of the coast survey, "means an additional atmospheric pressure that is equal to a foot of water on the earth's surface. On an area 20 by 100 miles that would be a weight of a billion and a half tons. This pressure, or the relieving of pressure as a barometer rises, may be the 'trigger finger' that sets off the earthquake, though, of course, there are many other factors contributing to the tremor."

The Diary of a New Yorker

by CLARK KINNAIRD

NEW YORK, April 30.—Broadway is the show street, also the show-off street. The only night clubs which are profitable are those run for the benefit of persons who like flattery and are willing to pay for it. These folks find balm for the ego in being addressed correctly by a head waiter, given a "ringside" table, being referred to by name by a big-mouthed, vulgar "master of ceremonies," and paid attention by the usually nude girl "entertainers." They don't mind paying exorbitantly for their fun, such as it is.

Most of the big spenders are men or women who have ways of getting money without earning it. Broadway doesn't care where your money comes from as long as you spend it.

Until recently, the boys who did the most bankroll rolling in the gay places were two brothers who operated a seemingly prosperous brokerage house. They gave parties for crowds of girls. One afternoon they gave two automobiles, one costing $15,000 and another $18,000. To another actress they presented a grand piano. On one occasion they tossed a handful of jeweled pieces among a crowd of girls who happened to be their companions for the evening.

Broadway saw their four limousines (why so many, no one knows), their sumptuous apartments, and supposed they were millionaires, but didn't care whether they were or not. But now Broadway knows where they got the money. Their brokerage house is bankrupt, and they owe more than $1,500,000. Several hundred persons, many of them widows and persons of small means, are ruined financially. The boys, instead of investing money deposited with them, spent it on Broadway, showing off.

One of the strangest organizations in the world is the aviators' society, called "Quiet Birdmen." That isn't the real name, but members know the correct meaning of the initials QB upon the tiny pins that initiates wear inconspicuously. Only members may attend meetings. Names of officers are never made public, and the organization does not permit publication of lists of its membership. Behind the clubhouse doors the QB's are able to talk frankly, without fear of question, about the aerial feats that bring wide world attention.

What would newspapers give to know what Lindbergh told the QB's? He belongs.

TRICKS OF PLEASING GUESTS

When a certain large hotel was opened in a town a few weeks ago, the manager appreciated that merely to provide excellent service would not be sufficient inducement to attract the guest in the habit of going to some other hotel which also offered excellent service. All other things being equal, a man would rather stay at a hotel where habit has made him feel most at home—where everything looks familiar. The only trouble with perfect service is that it attracts no attention. When a man is satisfied with a thing, he gives little thought to it or to the other—just as a man never appreciates what a good little stomach he has when it is working perfectly. He accepts an immaculate hotel room and good food as a matter of course, and the service makes no impression on him; but a lack of clean towels or failure to receive a telephone message cuts a little notch in his memory. So, decided this wise manager, the only way to impress on a guest that he is being well looked after is to give him super-service; a way to stir a man's imagination.

For example, a guest at this particular hotel orders food brought to his room. When the tray comes, it probably has on it not only the food but the rosebud in a little vase. No matter where he goes for flowers or not, the guest recognizes that it was thoughtful and clever of the management to send him that nice little rosebud. He thinks that is good service. Then, it suddenly flashes upon him: "Why, the service here is all good—remarkably good!" He remembers little items of high-grade service which he had previously accepted as mere routine. You see, his imagination has been awakened.

AND SCIENCE REIGNED

It was a protest meeting of Irish sympathizers. The president called the meeting to order, and after an eloquent harangue in which most of the important issues were skillfully avoided, he asked if there were any questions. A large, beefy individual with a forbidding scowl, whom we shall designate here as Mr. Murphy, arose to his feet and thundered out:

"What I'd like to know, Mr. President is what you did with the money we gave you last year?"

At that moment a chair fell from the balcony above the stalwart Mr. Murphy, and considerably reduced his interest in the proceedings. His unconscious form was grasped capably and carried from the hall. Amid an eloquent silence the president asked quietly:

"Are there any more questions?"

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

MAKEUP—APPLICATION AND SELECTION

The artist who thinks in terms of complete effects has an unerring blending of color. His inspired brush paints color and youth into the eyes and the lips of his model. And if she, too, had cultivated the same genius for selection, the beauty that he gives her would be part of her actual existence. Do you select a box of powder as passively as you buy a bag of sugar, thinking that all powder is good—even as all sugar ought to be? I shall not even attempt to question the quality of the powder that throng the market—but do buy only the products of well established reputation. Don't buy too light a powder. Don't forget your neck—under the chin and behind the ears in your powdering. It is really quite distressing to find a contrast in color—all on the one face!

Along about this time of the year you begin to think of tan and freckles. If you tan you are about to receive welcome news, for there are now sun-tan powders. Sun-tan really is the best description of the color; they exactly blend with the shade of your skin after a good healthy tan.

A foundation cream may be had to match the powder, and there you have the last word in sophistication. No matter what the reason or what the condition, your skin can still be perfectly groomed.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS M. D.
Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

Answers to Correspondents

"Dear Dr. Lulu: I lost 56 pounds in seven months, and thanks to your wonderful teachings I am now a perfect 36. I did not eat quite so much as you advised, so I lost five pounds a week for quite a while. But what I would like to know is, after losing so much will I gain again if I start eating the things I want? I never touched potatoes or the more starchy foods, and am afraid to try because I wouldn't be fat again for anything."—MRS. E.

Your average loss for the seven months amounts to about a pound a month. That is not too rapid. It is not unusual to lose more than the two pounds a week at first. It isn't all fat, but a lot of excess water your tissues have been holding. After the first weeks, it is not advisable to lose more than two pounds unless you are being supervised by a physician, for a loss of more than this may mean that you are on a diet which is deficient in the foods you need. You must always remember that the only foods which you can cut down on are the energy foods, and the only reason you can do this is that your own fat will supply the deficit.

There is no reason why you shouldn't have potatoes and the food which is known as a small amount every day. But watch the little scales, for the same errors in diet that brought on your overweight in the first place, will bring it on again. You will find that you can eat quite so much for these foods as you use to. That is one of the advantages of being on a reducing diet long enough to get to normal weight. You re-educate your tastes. That's a very important point. Your tastes certainly must be re-educated.

When you are normal weight your food needs are apparently increased and you can eat more than you can while you were overweight. Our reducing and gaining instructions are contained in a booklet on the subject which can be obtained by enclosing amount in coin to cover expenses of printing and handling, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Diet in Epilepsy Mrs. C.—Epileptic patients are now being quite successfully treated with what is known as a ketogenic diet. This is a diet which is very high in fats and very low in starches and sugars.

The ketogenic diet has to be gradually assumed and must contain all of the elements necessary for the patient, so it has to be very carefully worked out by both the doctor and the dietitian. You stated that you enclosed a diet list, but you failed to do so. However, I wouldn't be able to help you any, dear Mrs. C., unless you must have personal directions from your doctor for this diet. The child's hygiene in every respect must be very carefully attended to.

Are Tomatoes and Lettuce Fattening?

Tomatoes register 16 ounces (2 to 3 medium) to the 100 C. Lettuce, 134 pounds to the 100 C. You see, you can eat considerable of these foods without counting many calories, so they are approximately non-fattening foods. But the oil you put on them! That registers 100 C. to one tablespoon. Foods that are high in calories are the guilty ones.

Our article on Balanced Diet gives a list of books on dietetics, one of which every household should have. You can have this article by enclosing two cents in coin and the self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Editor's Note: Dr. Peters cannot diagnose nor give personal advice. Your questions, if of general interest, will be answered in the column, in turn. Requests for articles must be accompanied by a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope and two cents in coin for each article to cover cost of printing and handling. For the pamphlet on reducing and gaining, ten cents in coin with fully s. a. s. e. must be enclosed. Address Dr. Peters in care of this paper.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

PROPER PRIDE

I don't believe in being proud to the extent of spoiling a perfectly good friendship, when it is just as much my place to make advances as the other person's. On the other hand, I don't see any use in going out of my way to be snubbed. There is such a thing as proper pride. To illustrate my point I will print a letter from a correspondent.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: Six years ago I started to go with a boy. We went together for three years. Then he was called away, and when he left I guess he never forgot me. I went with no one for several months, but not long after that he wrote and told me he had decided I was not the girl for him. Of course I felt badly about it, but made up my mind to try and get and make something of myself. I went with other boys, but never seemed to find anyone like my old friend.

"Three years have passed, and he is now back in my home town. I have seen him several times, but did not speak. The other day he spoke to me, and one night when my sister and her chum were on their way home he joined them. Sis invited him in for a drink and I guess he better not. She invited him again and he came in. I was at home with mother and dad.

"He has seen me since, but has never made a date or even asked to call. Really, Mrs. Lee, I love him and would like to get back with him. Would it be correct to write and invite him to call? Or how can I arrange to let him know I want him."

"Rose Marie." Well, considering he told you plainly that he thought you were not the girl for him, and has made no effort to call on you since he has been back, I think you would simply be inviting another snub to let him think you are anxious to have him come back. It is absolutely his place to ask you—and humbly at that—if he may come to see you, and if he does not care enough or has not enough spunk to do that, I think I would let him go, dear, even if it is hard.

DISCOURAGED FOLKS

"I am so discouraged I don't care what happens." This is what I overheard a woman say to a companion as I passed them on the street. How many people are lonely, tired and discouraged? Did you ever notice how everyone brightens up when a person with a smiling face comes along? No matter how down you may be feeling, when you encounter that face with a merry twinkle in the eyes, you feel your mood brighten. It would be a good thing if we could all cultivate the merry things of life so that we may look cheerful and help others, would it not?

"Dear Mrs. Lee: About six months ago I met a boy and went with him about two months. We wrote to each other all the time. The last letter he wrote was just like before, but he never wrote again. What do you think was his reason for not writing any more?"

"Blue Eyes." I can't imagine, Blue Eyes, unless he met a girl he liked better, which is not pleasant to consider, is it? Possibly something that he couldn't help prevented his writing as usual and he has written and explained before this.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, April 30.—The unvarnished fact is:

As political result-getters, the "oil cases" have turned out practically a total flop.

They hardly figured in the last national campaign.

There are no signs that they'll figure much in this year's.

They've had good newspaper "play," in the press agent's language, but the public hasn't warmed up to them.

Before the senate investigating committee, they've drawn no crowds recently. In court, they've dragged. On election day, the voters appear never to have heard of them.

No popular "appeal"—seemingly.

My own theory is that it's been a long time since any but the merest handful of people have had any real idea what the "oil cases" are about.

Consequently nearly everybody's lost track of them. When Harry Sinclair actually is in the act of being acquitted of something there's a momentary revival of interest, but it's scarcely associated in folks' minds with the original "oil cases."

And I don't wonder at this decline in interest.

To all intents and purposes, the oil inquiry has been exclusively Senator Tom Walsh's for the last five or six years. He's known more about it than anybody else, and he hasn't liked it when anybody else tried to dip into it—fell out with Senator Nye, for instance, when he did.

Walsh is a wonderful lawyer, but a pretty poorly publicity man.

What he did to the oil investigation was to involve it in such a technical tangle—a such a mixup of jurisprudence, finance, government, geology, ethics and navy strategy—that which played their part in the Teapot Dome and Elk Hills leases—that only a super-expert can make heads or tails of it.

It would be nice if political orators, in the next few months, could tell the voters what the "oil cases" really do mean, but it can't be done.

Not many political orators understand the meaning very well themselves.

Then, on the who do know can't make it clear to the "man in the street." It's too complicated. It would be like trying to explain an intricate problem in the highest mathematics to a beginner in long division.

Harsh names can be called, of course—and will be—but both sides can do that—indeed, have begun it already.

To believe that the very jurists which have tried the Elk Hills and Teapot Dome cases have had anything but the haziest comprehension of the issues they were asked to decide, is a tremendous strain on the imagination.

They didn't look as if they did, and several of the jurors have since admitted that they didn't.

If not, it is likely that the average individual can?

And the jurists, it's to be remembered, only had the simplest part of the puzzle to wrestle with—the basic Fall-Doherty-Sinclair discomfiture. All the Continental Trusting company and campaign fund contribution details come later, plus an infinity of additional complications.

The plot's too devious to be followed except by a master mind like "Tom alish's, and the bulk of it's bound to be wasted, in consequence.

Household Hints

By MRS. MARY MORTON

MENU HINT

For one's health whole wheat should be included at least once in every day's menu. For breakfast either whole wheat toast or whole wheat muffins should be served occasionally, especially where there are children. Better still, whole wheat toast should be the rule, with an occasional helping of white bread toast for a change.

Fresh Fruit Prepared Cereal
Brown Bread Toast or
Pecan Whole Wheat Muffins
Boiled Eggs
Coffee or Cocoa

TODAY'S RECIPES

Pecan Whole Wheat Muffins—One cup whole wheat flour, three-fourths cup white flour, four teaspoons baking powder, one egg, one-fourth cup brown sugar, half teaspoon salt, one cup milk, one-fourth cup shortening, half cup chopped pecans. Mix dry ingredients. Beat the egg, add milk and shortening. Add to dry ingredients, and lastly add chopped nuts. Bake for 25 minutes in a moderate oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit).

Graham Bread Toast—Graham bread may be used with excellent results in any of the toast recipes. Its distinctive flavor brings added zest to the dish. Graham bread with cream or nimento cheese, with jams, jellies or preserves, forms a particularly healthful and nourishing combination, and is especially recommended for children.

Peter's Adventure

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

THE WINGED JEWEL

Just as he should not disturb his old friends and frighten them into flying away before he had a chance to talk to them should any of his old friends be honey-sucking about the blossoms, Peter stumped over to the honey-suckle.

"Zzzzz!" A still the buzzing sound continued, but not a bee was in sight.

"Why, where, what," stammered the boy, looking about in astonishment. Then Peter jumped back a step, started to find himself, gazing straight into somebody's bright eyes. A bright jewel with wings was on a level with Peter's head. The bright jewel had a voice as well as eyes and wings.

"Why—where—what—" it mocked the boy. "What business is it of yours? I am minding my own affairs. What are you poking your nose into mine for?"

"I'm not!" Peter was indignant. "I don't know who you are, but you are disagreeable. If you are beautiful, I didn't know over here to see you. I didn't know you were here. I am looking for my friend the bees. I heard them buzzing."

"You heard nothing of the sort," twittered the fellow, rudely. "You heard me. I should like to see any bee that could beat me at that game. Buzzing is one of my specialties. And I can gather as much sweet wine in a minute as a bee can in half a day."

"True enough, I don't make the sweet wine into honey and store it away to eat in the winter. I think that is about as stupid a thing as it is possible to do. I drink what I gather or don't think about the winter at take it home to the babies and all. When Jack Frost arrives I am far away where the skies are blue and the air is warm. I keep right on sipping nectar in the gardens of the Southland, and that, with an occasional spider or a fly or two once in a while, make me the most beautiful bird in all the world. You said yourself that I was beautiful, now didn't you?"

"I certainly did, and you are,

But beauty doesn't court for much if you are hateful!" Peter was still cross. The flier knew how ungracious he had been and was sorry. He stopped his fluttering, alighted on a honeysuckle blossom, and stood perfectly still. And the boy caught his breath.

The sun shone upon the flier's coat of green and gold and made the ruby red feathers upon his throat gleam like living fire. With the rise and fall of his breath the tints of his throat changed from ruby red to deepest black and back again to ruby red. Like a wonderful gem, part emerald, part ruby, the little bird sparkled and glittered in the sunlight.

"Beautiful!" exclaimed Peter. "I should say so! You are the most gorgeous bird I have ever seen! And now that you have stopped fluttering, your wings can guess who you are!"

"Who am I, Two-Legs?" asked the fellow. "If you guess right I will stay and talk to you. If you don't—Wrrr! Off I shall go—like that. Come now, quickly. What's my name?"

"Humming-Bird!" answered Peter, promptly.

Reserves Open Diamond Season With Victory

BEAT SPRINGFIELD TRAMPS BY BATTLING AROUND IN ONE STANZA

Schliff Pitches Well Before Meagre Crowd And Raw Day To Earn 6 To 2 Win—Visitors Play Stupid Ball.

FLARING up with an old-fashioned rally in the eighth inning, the Xenia Reserves shoved six runs over the plate before they could be stopped and defeated the Home City Tramps of Springfield 6 to 2 before a small group of loyal fans in the opening baseball game of the season Sunday afternoon at Washington Park.

For seven innings the contest was as pretty a pitcher's battle as anybody could ask. Schliff, a Dayton right-handed hurler, on the mound for the Reserves, was like ice water, and yielded only one safe hit in the first eight frames—that a single by Barringer in the third. He was blotting his opponents with regularity, few men making the acquaintance of Barlow at first.

Valentine, a southpaw, Springfield pitcher, was wild but effective with men on bases, and also kept his opponents away from the plate for seven innings, granting four scattered hits during this time.

He weakened, however, in the eighth, which was a more or less wild inning. Reserves combined four hits, including a double, with two errors and a walk, to assemble six tallies. The team batted entirely around.

Johnson, first batter, beat out a bunt. Eckert was safe when Burk, after fielding his roller, threw wild to first. Hood knocked down the throw but then misplaced the ball. While he looked everywhere but the right place, Johnson raced to third and Eckert made second safely.

This had break seemed to bother Valentine. He dug his own grave when he lost his poise and passed the Conley menace. With the bases clogged and none down, the usually reliable Durnbaugh indignantly fanned, the only strikeout recorded for Valentine during the game.

With the infield playing close in, Coy dumped a hit over the short-stop's head, admitting Johnson and again filling the bases. Barlow dropped a double in right field, scoring Eckert and Conley and sending Coy to third.

The Reserves were now in full blue and cry. Fisher raised a high fly to center and Fiesinger camped under the ball and then let it slip through his fingers. Coy and Barlow scored on the play and Fisher took second.

Randall laid down a perfect bunt toward third and easily beat it out. Fisher advancing to third, Randall trotted to second unmolested. Fisher tabbed the sixth run of the inning while Covington was tossing Schliff out at first. Johnson, up for the second time in the frame, ended the proceedings by grounding out.

That demonstration took all doubt out of the game, although the Tramps menaced to the extent of scoring two runs in the ninth—consolation tallies that deprived Schliff of a shutout victory.

In this inning, Schliff made the mistake of walking Fiesinger, the first batter. He advanced to second on a wild pitch. Covington pointed to the pitcher, Fry, Barlow, Eckert and Conley, who were all on base, and strode, both runners advanced a base on a passed ball. Then Waipie cuddled a nice single to right, scoring two runs. Valentine also singled. Coy allowed the ball to slip through his legs and the batter set sail for second, making it. Waipie stopping at third, Schliff put on steam and got Bates, a pinch hitter, on a fly to Johnson. Barringer rolled to Eckert for the final out.

Reserves didn't mar any fences with the force of their drives but they did manage to make their frugal collection of eight hits, all singles.

Both teams passed up several chances to score in the first seven innings. In the get-away inning, Valentine kissed goodbye to control and walked three batters. There were also two passed balls and a stolen base in this frame and yet the Reserves failed to score.

Valentine found himself and got the Reserves in order in the second. In the third with two down, Captain "Jug" Conley got the first Reserve hit of the season, a single, but the best "Rock" Durnbaugh could do, was an easy roller to second.

Schliff led off with a two-base hit over the railroad in the fifth and went to third on an out at first. Eckert long to center, which should have been a sacrifice fly, went for nothing when the umpire called Schliff out, ruling he had left third base before the catch was made.

Again in the sixth, Conley walked for a starter. Durnbaugh raised a high fly to Mason and Conley, thinking the catch would be made, held first. Mason dropped it but then relayed the ball to second for an easy force. Coy popped to third and Barlow singled to center. He tried to stretch it as the ball was relayed to third but was caught on a close play when Covington made a snap throw to second.

Downright dumb baseball cost the Tramps at least several runs. A double play got Schliff out of a ticklish position in the third. With one out, Valentine was safe on Eckert's second error. Barringer made the first hit of the game and then Burk hit into the double killing, Eckert to Conley to Barlow.

In the fifth, Waipie walked for a starter, Mason forced him at second, Valentine sacrificed. Then Mason was caught flat-footed off second by Schliff's sudden toss to Eckert.

In the seventh, Schliff passed Fiesinger, the first batter, as was his custom. Covington sacrificed but Wilson fanned. Waipie hit a hot grounder toward short, the ball hitting Fiesinger as he tore at the ball. He was automatically retired.

Springfield won the booby prize for boneheadedness in the eighth, wasting three hits. Mason was out on a grounder but Valentine singled and Hood singled to center. Instead of scoring on the hit, Valentine balled up the works by going back to third. Meanwhile Hood was going to second and Schliff found the bag was already occupied by Barringer, who had returned to second.

A prisoner between first and second, Hood was easily put out before he could get back to first. Randall tossed to Barlow.

All in all it was a good game for an opener. Schliff fanned four batters and walked five. Valentine whiffed one and also passed five. There was poison in Barlow's bat, the next batter, first base man making three hits in four times at bat, including two doubles. Valentine and Barringer each made two hits for the visitors.

Threatening weather held down the attendance. It started to sprinkle shortly before the game time, but soon stopped. The weather, however, was raw and a stiff breeze converted hard liners into easy outs.

XENIA EAGLES No. 1689 CARNIVAL APRIL 28th TO MAY 5th

CHEVROLET

A Ride Tells a Wonderful Story

Every day, the Bigger and Better Chevrolet is literally selling itself to thousands of new owners!

Here are smoothness and quietness of operation never before thought possible except in higher-priced automobiles! Here are comfort and roadability that make continued high speed driving a pleasure! And here is effortless control that brings an entirely new order of motoring enjoyment into the low-price field!

No matter what car you may now be driving, no matter what cars you may have driven in the past—you owe it to yourself to take the wheel of the new Chevrolet... and drive!

Come in today for a demonstration. We'll gladly give you a ride—as far as you like... over roads of your own selection!

Paint Headquarters!

Why some paint jobs are good---and some not so good

It takes good paint to do a good paint job. It goes farther, lasts longer, looks better. And the little difference in price—if any—is a negligible factor whether for a small inside job or the entire exterior surface of your home. Buy good paint, properly apply it to a well prepared surface, and you will have a good job. To follow this simple formula is to discover for yourself why some paint jobs are good—and to disregard it is to explain why some are not so good.

To be sure of your paint let us supply McDougall-Butler quality. We guarantee it and so do the makers.

Ask us for a copy of "Paint and Varnish Facts." This little encyclopedia tells you all you want to know about doing every type of household finishing job.

MAJORITY OF AUTOS TESTED HAVE GOOD BRAKES IS LEARNED

A grand total of 513 automobiles had been tested when the "Better Brakes Week" campaign of the Greene County Auto Club came to a successful close Saturday night. Of this number, only ten machines were found to have faulty brakes, while those of the remainder, either in good or perfect condition, were given "O. K." stickers.

A check disclosed that seventy-seven autos were tested Tuesday, 128 on Wednesday, 114 on Thursday, eighty-three on Friday and 101 on Saturday at the testing grounds on Market St. between King and Galloway Sts.

The testing was done under the supervision of Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman.

XENIA MERCHANT ON SALES HONOR ROLL

H. L. Sayre, Xenia Rexall drugist, has been placed on the honor roll for 1927 of the International Association of Rexall Clubs and presented with a button signifying the honor.

He was selected for the honor because the Xenia store was among the 10 per cent highest in the sale of Rexall products last year of all Rexall stores in the state of Ohio. The award is especially significant because the classification includes stores all over the continent, 90 per cent of which failed to make the honor roll and because the Xenia store was in competition with stores in western cities where the buying territory is much larger.

TWO FIRES BOOST NUMBER OF ALARMS

Two more fires over the week-end boosted the total number of alarms answered by the Xenia Fire Department to fifty-nine so far this year as compared with twenty-eight for the corresponding period in 1927.

Damage estimated at $70, not covered by insurance, was caused by a roof fire at the home of Albert Thornhill, 639 S. Detroit St., at 11:25 a. m. Sunday. Sparks from a fire, setting fire to the shingle roof, burned a hole ten feet square before firemen put the blaze out with water.

Sparks setting fire to the roof of a residence at 225 W. Second St., owned by William Atkinson and occupied by C. H. Jenkins, caused $5 damage at 10:25 p. m. Saturday. Chemicals were used to extinguish the flames.

AUTO DESTROYED BY FLAMES ALONG PIKE

A Chrysler touring car, owned and driven by L. Chamberlin, Dayton, O., caught on fire from the motor and burned up on the Dayton and Xenia Pike about 250 yards south of the Greene County Children's Home at 10 o'clock Saturday night.

Chamberlin was driving from Dayton to Portsmouth when the blaze broke out. The drive hurriedly brought the car to a stop and leaped out.

After the fire reached two five gallon cans of paint stored in the rear end of the machine, the flames spread rapidly.

Chamberlin told O. H. Cornwell, county road patrolman, who investigated the case, that he carried only $400 insurance on the auto.

Chamberlin failed a passing motorist and returned to Dayton.

GETS SENTENCE IN NON-SUPPORT CASE

Found guilty of an old charge of non-support, George Ringer, Chillicothe, O., formerly of Xenia, father of fourteen children, was fined $10 and costs and sentenced to serve six months in the Cincinnati Workhouse by Probate Judge S. C. Wright Monday morning.

Arrested in Chillicothe last Friday and returned to Xenia by Probation Officer J. E. Watts, Ringer pleaded not guilty to an affidavit sworn to by his divorced wife, Anna Ringer, who charged him with failure to contribute to the support of his children.

"I was a great sufferer from rheumatism," said Mr. Brown. "but since I got Konjola my suffering is gone and I am glad to let others know about it."

"A number of years ago I began having pains in my right arm. This was pronounced rheumatism. The attacks came over me a month apart, and in recent years I started to have these pains almost every week, until I finally was in misery most of the time. I tried all kinds of medicines but they had no more effect on me than so much water. Finally the misery got so bad that I could not even raise my arms and this kept me from doing my work in the proper way. It seemed that even the weight of clothing hurt me. Sometimes I could not even walk any short distance without suffering so much that I would have to stop and rest until the attack got better. I was very discouraged and had almost given up hope of ever being well again."

"Just about this time I got word from some people that Konjola would help me. I decided to try it, but will be truthful and say that I never thought Konjola would do me a bit of good, but I actually found wonderful relief in one bottle. This convinced me that this was the only medicine that would ever help me, and I wouldn't think of missing a dose. As I continued with the treatment the rheumatic pains began easing up. Now it is an honest fact that I haven't been troubled with that ailment. I can do my work without suffering any misery and just the other day I walked over a mile and was as fresh and full of energy as when I started. I can't begin to describe the wonderful benefits I derived from the use of Konjola but I want everyone to know that this was the only medicine that ever relieved all my miseries and that my reason for making this public endorsement."

COOPS GROWING

Co-operative business operations of farmers of Ohio have shown unusual growth since the beginning of 1928, judging from reports received at the office of the Greene County Farm Bureau from Columbus headquarters of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation.

County livestock marketing associations, affiliated with farm bureaus of the state recorded a growth of 21 per cent for the first three months of this year as compared to the same period a year ago. At the same time commission associations on four eastern terminal markets, owned by farmers of Ohio and adjoining states have shown a similar increase in business.

Pooled co-operative purchases of fertilizer and feed through the organization for the first four months this year have run into a volume nearly 70 per cent greater than for the same period last year. The organization's mutual automobile insurance company has received more than 80 per cent more applications from January 1 to April 15 than during the same period of 1927. The insurance increase, it is reported, does not include applications from West Virginia and Maryland where the farmer's organization recently established agencies.

Membership in the farm bureau has also shown an increase of nearly 2,500, according to the report.

MISSION OF MARINES IN CHINA EXPLAINED By GEN. SMEDLEY D. BUTLER In Charge of Marine Forces in China

(Smedley Butler was born in West Chester, Pa., in 1881. He was appointed to the U. S. marine corps in 1899, and was gradually promoted to colonel in 1919 and brigadier general in 1921. Butler secured a leave of absence for one year to act as director of the department of safety of Philadelphia in 1924. He served as commander of Camp Brest, France, Oct. 15, 1918 to July, 1919. General Butler was appointed in charge of marine forces in China in 1927.)

I have no knowledge of the strength of the various Chinese military factions. I have no opinions as to which side will triumph in the civil war. America's policy toward China is the concern of the state department and of the American minister.

Our force is here for one purpose only—to give ample protection to Americans, and, if possible, to their property, in times of danger. We are not here to fight, and we carry no chip on our shoulder. I shall consider our expedition to have been entirely successful only if we finally withdraw from China without the spilling of any blood, either American or Chinese.

The mere fear of thousands of fighting men crossing the seas and landing on foreign soil is apt to lend to arrogance, but from the first I have never missed an opportunity to impress upon my force the fact that we are not here to fight. We want peace—we want security for all Americans in China, including ourselves. To that end we must be constantly ready, like a fire company, to move at a moment's notice to any conflagration.

But this country belongs to the Chinese, and I tolerate no clashes between my men and the Chinese people. If a man so much as slaps a rickshaw coolie, or lays a hand upon a servant, he gets a general court martial.

The World And All

SURPRISES

More and more, as I pass through this remarkable world, I am surprised. I find new things and amazing tendencies and entrancing speculations, bobbing up all about me.

I am surprised by the kindness and good-nature of men, and by the quiet constancy of women. I am surprised by the fundamental honesty of humankind, despite economic situations that would seem to make dishonesty advantageous to so many. I am surprised by the devotion to the public welfare that exists among public servants, despite the glaring examples of faithlessness to public trust that are daily exploited in the public prints.

I am surprised by the selflessness (NOT selfishness) of wealthy persons who could afford to ignore the interests of all humanity outside their own narrow circles, but persist, year after year, in devoting their spare time and money to constructive benevolence. I am surprised by the cheerful sacrifices imposed by millions of poor persons upon themselves for the purpose of helping others or supporting idealistic enterprises. I am surprised by the matter-of-fact manner of many unmarried women who are foregoing half of life in order to make life full and complete for struggling brothers, sisters or parents.

I am constantly surprised by the beauty of life. By the gorgeousness of returning spring; by the infinite variety of love; by the charm of ancient houses; by the sweet simplicity of childhood; by the eagerness of intelligent youth, seeking knowledge; by the charitable sagacity of age, reviewing life without regret; by the play of light and shadow upon the edge of the woodland in the late afternoon; by interesting human race.

the ceaseless surge of the sea, insistently calling upon all who love adventure and the mystery of infinity.

I am surprised always by the faith of simple folk, who never falter in their believing, though subtle men may out-reason them times without number. I am surprised by the love that endureth all things and seeketh not itself. I am surprised by the hope that never fades, but keeps warm the heart that is assailed by despair.

To me this is marvelous existence, because it is so beset by surprises. I can not get used to it. I am sure that it will never bore me. Constantly I am finding it necessary to readjust myself to the mysterious life about me. When I am tempted to believe that I know my world, I am shocked awake by another succession of these surprises and revelations of the nature of this

GALLOWAY & CHERRY

the FABLE of the THUMB

Once upon a time, it is related, a tiny leak was discovered in one of the dikes that sheltered Holland from the seas.

The tiny hole was discovered by a small boy, but wise beyond his years. The small boy pondered on the leak and came to the rightful conclusion that from little leaks, big leaks come and through big leaks, oceans may pour to wipe out his friends and their houses.

The small boy believed that if he ran for the assistance of the men of the village, the water, sapping at the dike, would convert the tiny leak into a torrent, and through his procrastination, the town would be destroyed.

So the small boy thrust his thumb into the small leak, stopping the erosion of the trickling water and staving off the possibility of a deluge. He had to wait a long time until men came and repaired the leak and prevented the flood.

We like to think that Xenia has many people inspired by the same spirit as the small boy of Holland, who are checking the small leaks of out-of-town buying that may develop into a deluge that will wipe out Xenia.

It has been written that many people are like sheep, who are easily led. The bell-wether is the person who shops in another city and reports the results of his shopping in such a manner that others are persuaded to do likewise.

It can be conceived that eventually this practice of shopping out of Xenia will become a torrent which will submerge Xenia business men in the dark waters of failure and completely wipe out Xenia, its homes and its institutions. Then Xenia will become a memory of which historians will write:

"Here was Xenia, a county seat of much promise, which at one time bore indications of becoming a dominant metropolis of south-western Ohio. Lack of progressive spirit, however, held this city back until others, less likely situated, had surpassed it. Still it survived until approximately 1928 when its people, forgetful of the obligations of municipal citizenship, chose to throw their buying support elsewhere. The result was that surrounding cities prospered while Xenia withered and died. Its merchants, denied home-town support, closed out their businesses and moved away. Its professional men and industries followed. Now it is a ghost city, empty buildings rearing themselves against a background of desolation. Rest in peace."

This is a picture of the disaster that can lurk in the practice of buying away from Xenia. Earnest, sincere citizens are holding their thumbs in the dikes of prosperity to ward off such a catastrophe. Others should rush to their assistance.

LEAVE BY MOTOR FOR CALIFORNIA

R. H. Kingsbury, Rogers St., accompanied by his brother-in-law, Hubert Husted, Cleveland, left early Monday by motor for La Jolla, Calif., to join Mrs. Husted and Mrs. Kingsbury and the three Kingsbury children, Katherine, Mary Ann and Robert, who have been there since January.

They will make the trip by the Southern route, through Little Rock, Ark., Dallas, Texas, El Paso, Douglas Arizona and Tucson Ariz., stopping there to visit Mr. Kingsbury's father R. S. Kingsbury who spent the winter there for his health. Mr. and Mrs. Kingsbury and children will return by motor along the Santa Fe trail, arriving home the first week in June. Mr. and Mrs. Husted will return to Cleveland by train.

Bellevue business men who ordinarily drive their autos to their places of business walked Saturday in response to an appeal from the retail merchants' division of the Chamber of Commerce.

The plan was conceived to relieve downtown parking conditions, parking space said to be at a premium. This condition was worse on Saturday due to shoppers coming into the city and merchants will leave the parking spaces as a courtesy to the visitors.

Formal opening of the new Fayette Theater, Washington C. H., was scheduled for Monday at the afternoon performance.

The Fayette is in a new theater building of Spanish style architecture and is equipped with a $12,500 organ. The building is two stories high with business rooms on each side of the entrance.

Harry W. Smoots, Mr. Vernon, and Hoy O. Simons, Washington C. H., are associated in the enterprise.

LEAVE BY MOTOR FOR CALIFORNIA

R. H. Kingsbury, Rogers St., accompanied by his brother-in-law, Hubert Husted, Cleveland, left early Monday by motor for La Jolla, Calif., to join Mrs. Husted and Mrs. Kingsbury's children, Katherine, Mary Ann and Robert, who have been there since January.

They will make the trip by the Southern route, through Little Rock, Ark., Dallas, Texas, El Paso, Douglas, Arizona and Tucson, Ariz., stopping there to visit Mr. Kingsbury's father R. S. Kingsbury who spent the winter there for his health. Mr. and Mrs. Kingsbury and children will return by motor along the Santa Fe trail, arriving home the first week in June. Mr. and Mrs. Husted will return to Cleveland by train.

The plan was conceived to relieve downtown parking conditions, parking space said to be at a premium. This condition was worse on Saturday due to shoppers coming into the city and merchants will leave the parking spaces as a courtesy to the visitors.

The right is reserved to reject any and all bids.

The Theater

Equity suits were filed by the government in federal court in New York last Friday against ten of the largest motion picture producers in the country, the motion picture producers and distributors of America and thirty-two film boards of trade in various parts of the country.

Announcement of the filing of suits with William Boyd, Alan Hale and the suits, which follows an extended investigation by the federal trade commission and the department of justice, was made by the latter department.

The improvement of Richard Dix, Paramount star, is continuing in a satisfactory manner, according to the latest bulletin from Hollywood. Dix was operated on for appendicitis, ten days ago and for several days his life was despaired of.

Buster Keaton's latest is "Twelve Thousand," serious in theme, in which he makes no effort to keep his face straight. "Skyscraper" is heralded as one of the best comedies of the season.

SWEETHEARTS

By IDA H. GIBSON
AUTHOR OF "MY SON'S SWEETHEARTS," "CONFESSIONS OF A WIFE," ETC.

"Claire," said Lynda, with convict ion, "you still love Fred Blaque."

READ THIS FIRST:

Lynda Fenton, a singularly innocent girl, is private secretary to Ralph Armitage. Her father, a drunkard, tells her that her mother deserted them, and that all women have their price.

Lynda meets Emily Andrews, who cherishes a secret fondness for David Kenmore, Lynda's companion from childhood. Emily plots against Lynda from the very beginning. David tells Lynda he loves her, but she decides she doesn't want to be in love with any man. David is away on a trip.

Lynda's father, too, deserts her, and Claire Stanhope comes to live with her. Claire tells of innocent love for Fred Blaque, a married man. Lynda comes home one day to find Fred in the house, and hears Claire entreating him to stay away.

June Challer, who has annexed money, invites Lynda and Claire and Emily Andrews to a big party. It's Lynda's first real affair, and she's enthused. Emily secretly sends David a letter, suggesting that he come home for the party, so that Lynda may be made to feel at ease. Then she sends him an anonymous note, saying "Ralph Armitage is rushing your girl."

Ralph meets with an accident, and sends for Lynda and Claire to come to him. Claire has had an innocent love affair with Fred Blaque, a friend of Ralph's, and a married man, and when Claire says she is fearful of a scandal when Mrs. Blaque petitions for divorce, Ralph tells her he'll fix it for her. Ralph says he'll be at June Challer's party.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER XXXIV

ARMITAGE COMES BACK

As Lynda and her friend sank back into the cushions of the gorgeous town car, returning from Ralph's home, Claire remarked: "I'm not so sure that was just the right thing for us to do, after all, Lyn."

"Why not, Claire? We made that poor young rich man forget his troubles, we have averted a scandal which promised to tumble about your unhappy head, and we've had a splendid time. Why wasn't it the right thing to do, especially as it was the best time I ever have had in my life?"

"That goes without saying, my dear, but you must not let the luxury of the Armitage home, and the fascination of Ralph Armitage make you lose sight of the fact that you would be perfectly miserable if you accepted that which Ralph only can give you."

"Do you believe that, Claire? Some girls seem very happy, even when they have taken the easiest way. Don't you think the old idea is more or less a bugbear, which we have dropped into the discard with the Victorian age? My dad said that all women were courtesans at heart, and he had almost made me believe that it is true, and that the only unhappy girls are those who are not smart enough to make the crooked path wide enough for a luxurious automobile boulevard."

"Gee, Lyn, one would think you were forty instead of eighteen." "I guess it is because I lived so long with just my father to talk to and to talk to me, that I have come to his convictions, that most women are mercenary instead of moral."

"Do you know, Lyn, that rather shocks me?" "Does it? My father seemed to think it true, and you also accused Ralph Armitage of thinking it tonight."

"Yes, I know," said Claire. "A great many men have this opinion of women, but you and I know better. We know some girls who are mercenary, instead of moral, but we are not built that way. I sometimes wish that I was, but immediately I grow sane again. I wonder sometimes why we are born with hearts—we women—when we would be much happier without them. If I must be a doll, I would rather be stuffed with sawdust than with that intangible thing that is called a soul."

"Claire," said Lynda, with conviction, "you still love Fred Blaque."

"Yes, Lynda, I do. Does that label me mercenary or moral under the circumstances? He represents to me everything that makes for happiness in this modern age. I could have everything that money would buy, if I would only let him give it to me. What keeps me from it, I do not know, while all the time I can only look forward to the daily grind, until—until—" Claire suddenly stopped, her voice choked with tears.

Lynda snuggled up to her, and with their arms about each other, the two girls rode the rest of the way home. Silently, each concerned with her own thoughts. As they went from the gate to walk beside Lynda. She wished he were there, and she could talk to him as she used to when they were almost children.

And she was going to be so happy when she got this job. Tonight she had found out that jobs do not make for happiness, after all. Tonight she wished that David would take her away from any and all jobs except that of being his wife.

"I hope you will not think I'm ungrateful, dear," said Claire, as they reached the piazza and sat down for a moment to watch the waning moon, still riding aloft in the starry heavens, "to say to you what I have just said. I am really happier with you than I have been at one time since I have grown up, and yet I know that when we talk of happiness, we talk of something we know very little about."

"No girl who is what men call beautiful, and who has to earn her living, reaches the age of twenty who does not know joy, pleasure, and sometimes bliss and ecstasy, and she may be happy for a little while at a time, but as for happiness, which means to be continuing to be happy, that is something we can imagine but I do not believe we shall ever know it."

"Come, Lyn, I am really getting morbid. The more one thinks, the more one philosophizes, the more unhappy one is."

When the girls went away from Ralph Armitage, he called his man and was put to bed, where he lay sleepless for hours. Never, since his unfortunate marriage, had he ever considered anyone or anything except his own inclinations and himself before.

Always it was a game he had been playing. He had decided that when the girl in the case elected to play with him, she knew that she must win or lose. He never seemed to realize before that nature might stack the cards in the man's favor. It was woman's destiny to give, and man's to accept.

"Lynda is different," he said to himself, with a groan, as a phrase of the old jazz song rang through his mind: "I want to be happy, happy—happy—but I can't be happy unless you're happy, too."

Her words of the afternoon came back to him: "I am going to get the highest price." As though he were answering her, he said aloud: "Well, I can give it to you. I can give you everything that you would want—except my name."

Another groan brought his man from the outside room, to turn him over in bed, and somewhat shocked at his drawn face he asked him if he should send for the doctor.

He did not know when he dropped asleep, but when he awakened the sun was shining through his window, and the clock beside his bed showed him it was nearly noon.

He rang for his breakfast, and asked if the car had been sent for Miss Fenton.

"Not yet, Mr. Armitage. As you did not say anything about it last night, Wilson thought it best to await orders."

During these busy Spring days when housecleaning is at hand, it is especially important that you save yourself from heavy laundry work.

THE THRIFT SERVICE

sends everything home perfectly washed, through nine changes of soft water, and with all the flat pieces (at least half of the average wash) all ironed ready to put away. The remainder is just ready for ironing.

BATH HIGH SENIORS TO PRESENT ANNUAL CLASS PLAY FRIDAY

"Deacon Dubbs," a highly humorous comedy drama, will be presented by the senior class of Bath High School in the school auditorium next Friday evening at 8 o'clock as the annual class play.

The story of the play centers around Rose Raleigh, who after living in the city several years, returned to her home town to find that her father is dead and a mortgage is being foreclosed on their old farm home. Deacon Dubbs, of "Sorghum Center, West Virginia," arrived before the sale and complications arise on account of Rose's city life.

Her love is Amos Coleman while Trixy is the female "Peck's Bad Boy" of the cast and much humor is furnished by Deuteronomy Jones and Yennie Jensen as small town "boobs." Rawdon Raleigh is the villain of the piece.

The cast is practically the same as that which so successfully presented "Son John" as the junior class play last year. Characters are taken as follows: "Rose Raleigh," Frances G. Esterline; "Amos Coleman," Howard Flatter; "Deacon Dubbs," John Ford; "Phillipina Popover," Mary Cosler; "Rawdon Raleigh," Harold Bausman; "Major McNutt," Sheridan Hozaker; "Emily Dale," Ruth Armstrong; "Yennie Jensen," Louise Massey; "Deuteronomy Jones," Lloyd Naragon.

The technical staff follows: electrician, Gilbert Brown; stage managers, Kenneth Lewis and Clarence Duncan; publicity managers, Marian Merrill and Edith Denney; business manager, Mae Davidson; costumes, Marvin Kneisly and Frank Davidson; advertising cartoonist, Orace Lavender.

FATHER OF XENIA TEACHER IS DEAD

Bert C. Drake, 54, Lebanon business man, father of Miss Sarah Drake, teacher at Central High School, died suddenly at his home in Lebanon Saturday morning.

Death is believed to have been caused by heart trouble. He had been suffering from the grip several days, but was at his office Friday and upon returning home, complained of not feeling well. When he did not arise at the usual hour Saturday morning Mrs. Drake investigated and found him dead.

Mr. Drake owned and operated a coal and grain elevator business under the name of The Lewis and Drake Coal Co. He was elected president of the Rotary Club last Thursday and was prominent in Masonic circles, being a past officer in the Blue Lodge, the Chapter and the Commandery.

Miss Sarah Drake had gone home Friday afternoon for the week end. Besides his wife and daughter, Mr. Drake leaves three sons, Howard, of Columbus and Francis and Robert of Lebanon. Funeral services will be held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock with burial in Lebanon.

WAR VETERAN DIES

Greene County relatives have received word of the death of I. W. St. John, which occurred at his home in Dunkirk, Ind., Sunday.

He was a Civil War Veteran, having served with the Seventy-fourth Regiment, O. V. I. He resided for a number of years in this county. Funeral services will be held at Dunkirk Tuesday afternoon.

PLAN MONUMENT IN MEMORY OF MAN WHO NAMED UNCLE SAM

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, April 30.—Patriotic organizations throughout the country are being urged to back a movement launched in Congress to erect a monument to the man who gave the world the sobriquet "Uncle Sam."

To speed the movement, Rep. David Hogg (R) of Indiana has introduced a bill appropriating $25,000 for the monument.

The monument would be erected at Merriam, Indiana, where the original "Uncle Sam," who was Samuel Wilson, is buried.

The story of Samuel Wilson and the "nickname" is one which should be preserved for posterity, in the opinion of the Indiana congressman. Samuel Wilson, he declares, was a typical American and the sobriquet, first applied to the United States in ridicule has been adopted by the people all over the country who use the name with pride.

The Original

The original "Uncle Sam," according to Hogg, was of Scotch descent. He was born in Wilmington, Delaware, May 4, 1775. Infected with the pioneering spirit of young America, he joined the Lewis and Clark upper Mississippi River exploration expedition in 1804.

He was next heard of as a sailor on the "Constitution" in the War of 1812. He won a citation for gallantry as a gunner on "Old Ironsides" in her historic battle with the British ship "Guerrriere."

He left the sea but again entered the war in the Pennsylvania militia, and on his discharge from the militia he became a government inspector of provisions at Albany, N. Y.

It was his custom, says Hogg, to mark army provisions "E. A.—U. S." meaning from Elbert Anderson's store for the United States. A young soldier, however, is said to have told longshoremen that the "U. S." meant "Uncle Sam" Wilson. The story spread and eventually about 1844 cartoons appeared in English newspapers with a long, gaunt individual representing "Uncle Sam."

Was Ridiculed

The cartoons were intended to ridicule the rise of the United States to a world power, and the awkward figure wearing a high silk hat and arrogantly asserting himself as the cartoonist's conception of the United States, says Hogg.

Wilson is said to have taken the cartoons and sobriquet as a personal insult and he withheld the story of "Uncle Sam" until shortly before his death.

The ridicule is said to have been one of the reasons why he emigrated to Indiana to take up a land grant. The Wilson farm in Noble County, Indiana, is still farmed by a descendant, says Hogg.

JOHN GRIEVE DIES IN HOSPITAL SUNDAY

SWEETHEARTS

AUTHOR OF "MY SON'S SWEETHEARTS," "CONFESSIONS OF A WIFE," ETC.

Copyright, 1928, by Central Press Association, Inc.

"Claire," said Lynda, with convict ion, "you still love Fred Blaque."

READ THIS FIRST:

Lynda Fenton, a singularly innocent girl, is private secretary to Ralph Armitage. Her father, a drunkard, tells her that her mother deserted them, and that all women have their price.

Lynda meets Emily Andrews, who cherishes a secret fondness for David Kenmore, Lynda's companion from childhood. Emily plots against Lynda from the very beginning. David tells Lynda he loves her, but she decides she doesn't want to be in love with any man. David is away on a trip.

Lynda's father, too, deserts her, and Claire Stanhope comes to live with her. Claire tells of innocent love for Fred Blaque, a married man. Lynda comes home one day to find Fred in the house, and hears Claire entreating him to stay away.

June Challer, who has annexed money, invites Lynda and Claire and Emily Andrews to a big party. It's Lynda's first real affair, and she's enthused. Emily secretly sends David a letter, suggesting that he come home for the party, so that Lynda may be made to feel at ease. Then she sends him an anonymous note, saying "Ralph Armitage is rushing your girl."

Ralph meets with an accident, and sends for Lynda and Claire to come to him. Claire has had an innocent love affair with Fred Blaque, a friend of Ralph's, and a married man, and when Claire says she is fearful of a scandal when Mrs. Blaque petitions for divorce, Ralph tells her he'll fix it for her. Ralph says he'll be at June Challer's party.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER XXXIV

ARMITAGE COMES BACK

As Lynda and her friend sank back into the cushions of the gorgeous town car, returning from Ralph's home, Claire remarked: "I'm not so sure that was just the right thing for us to do, after all, Lyn."

"Why not, Claire? We made that poor young rich man forget his troubles, we have exerted a scandal which promised to tumble about your unhappy head, and we've had a splendid time. Why wasn't it the right thing to do, especially as it was the best time I ever have had in my life?"

"That goes without saying, my dear, but you must not let the lure of the Armitage home, and the fascination of Ralph Armitage make you lose sight of the fact that you would be perfectly miserable if you accepted that which Ralph only can give you."

"Do you believe that, Claire? Some girls seem very happy, even when they have taken the easiest way. Don't you think the old idea is more or less a bugbear, which we have dropped into the discard with the Victorian age? My dad said that all women were courtesans at heart, and he had almost made me believe that it is true, and that the only unhappy girls are those who are not smart enough to make the crooked path wide enough for a luxurious automobile boulevard."

"Gee, Lyn, one would think you were forty instead of eighteen." "I guess it is because I lived so long with just my father to talk to and to talk to me, that I have come to his convictions, that most women are mercenary instead of moral."

"Do you know, Lyn, that rather shocks me?" "Does it? My father seemed to think it true, and you also accused Ralph Armitage of thinking it tonight."

"Yes, I know," said Claire. "A great many men have this opinion of women, but you and I know better. We know some girls who are mercenary, instead of moral, but we are not built that way. I sometimes wish that I was, but immediately I grow sane again. I wonder sometimes why we are born with hearts—we women—when we would be much happier without them. If I must be a doll, I would rather be stuffed with sawdust than with that intangible thing that is called a soul."

"Claire," said Lynda, with conviction, "you still love Fred Blaque." "Yes, Lynda, I do. Does that label me mercenary or moral under the circumstances? He represents to me everything that makes for happiness in this modern age. I could have everything that money would buy, if I would only let him give it to me. What keeps me from it, I do not know, while all the time I can only look forward to the daily grind, until—until—" Claire suddenly stopped, her voice choked with tears.

Lynda snuggled up to her, and with their arms about each other, the two girls rode the rest of the way home, each concerned with her own thoughts.

As they went from the gate to walk beside Lynda. She wished he were there, and she could talk to him as she used to when they were almost children.

And she was going to be so happy when she got this job.

Tonight she had found out that jobs do not make for happiness, after all. Tonight she wished that Lynda would take her away from any and all jobs except that of being his wife.

"I hope you will not think I'm ungrateful, dear," said Claire, as they reached the piazza and sat down for a moment to watch the waning moon, still riding aloft in the starry heavens, "to say to you what I have just said. I am really happier with you than I have been at one time since I have grown up, and yet I know that when we talk of happiness, we talk of something we know very little about."

"No girl who is what men call beautiful, and who has to earn her living, reaches the age of twenty who does not know joy, pleasure, and sometimes bliss and ecstasy, and she may be happy for a little while at a time, but as for happiness, which means to be continuing to be happy, that is something we can imagine but I do not believe we shall ever know it."

"Come, Lyn, I am really getting morbid. The more one thinks, the more one philosophizes, the more unhappy one is."

When the girls went away from Ralph Armitage, he called his man and was put to bed, where he lay sleepless for hours. Never, since his unfortunate marriage, had he ever considered anyone or anything except his own inclinations and himself before.

Always it was a game he had been playing. He had decided that when the girl in the case elected to play with him, she knew that she must win or lose. He never seemed to realize before that nature might stack the cards in the man's favor. It was woman's destiny to give, and man's to accept.

"Lynda is different," he said to himself, with a groan, as a phrase of the old jazz song rang through his mind: "I want to be happy, happy—happy—but I can't be happy unless you're happy, too."

Her words of the afternoon came back to him: "I am going to get the highest price." As though he were answering her, he said aloud: "Well, I can give it to you. I can give you everything that you would want—except my name."

Another groan brought his man from the outside room, to turn him over in bed, and somewhat shocked at his drawn face he asked him if he should send for the doctor.

He did not know when he dropped asleep, but when he awakened the sun was shining through his window, and the clock beside his bed showed him it was nearly noon.

He rang for his breakfast, and asked if the car had been sent for Miss Fenton.

"Not yet, Mr. Armitage. As you did not say anything about it last night, Wilson thought it best to await orders."

BATH HIGH SENIORS TO PRESENT ANNUAL CLASS PLAY FRIDAY

"Deacon Dubbs," a highly humorous comedy drama, will be presented by the senior class of Bath Twp. Consolidated High School in the school auditorium next Friday evening at 8 o'clock as the annual class play.

The story of the play centers around Rose Raleigh, who after living in the city several years, returned to her home town to find that her father is dead and a mortgage is being foreclosed on their old farm home. Deacon Dubbs, of "Sorghum Center, West Virginia," arrived before the sale and complications arise on account of Rose's city life.

Her love is Amos Coleman while Trixy is the female "Peck's Bad Boy" of the cast and much humor is furnished by Deuteronomy Jones and Yennie Jensen, two small town "boobs." Rawdon Raleigh is the villain of the piece.

The cast is practically the same as that which so successfully presented "Son John" as the junior class play last year. Characters are taken as follows: "Rose Raleigh," Frances G. Esterline; "Amos Coleman," Howard Flatter; "Deacon Dubbs," John Ford; "Phillipina Popover," Mary Cosler; "Trixy Coleman," Eileen Crosby; "Rawdon Raleigh," Harold Bausman; "Major McNutt," Sheridan Honaker; "Emily Dale," Ruth Armstrong; "Yennie Jensen," Louise Massey; "Deuteronomy Jones," Lloyd Naragon.
